70,000 WILL SEE YANKEE, DODGER GAME

Red Ruffing To Pitch For Yanks, Durocher Keeps Hurler Secret.

AMERICANS FAVORED

All Seats Sold as Weather Bureau Predicts 'Clear By Noon' Today.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — "Clear by noon" was the weather forecast for the opening world series game between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Yankees, scheduled to get under way before an expected crowd of 70,000 at 1:30 p. m. (EST) today in Yankee stadium.

Although ominously predicting showers in the forenoon, the weather bureau said the rainclouds would disperse by gametime. In the event of rain in the afternoon, authority to postpone the game rests with Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball commissioner. This would set the series back one day.

Red Ruffing, victor in five out of six series starts, will take the mound for the Yankees. Manager Leo Durocher of Brooklyn plans to withhold the name of his starting hurler until gametime. Curt Davis, Whit Wyatt, or Freddy Fitzsimmons are among the three most likely Dodger starters.

Betting odds found the Yanks 11-5 favorites to win the series and 13-10 choice to take the opening game. Durocher's decision to keep his starting pitcher a secret had little effect on the betting. Most bettors tabulated their wagers on the strength of Wyatt, who pulled Brooklyn through the key games in the National league pennant drive, would get the call.

Today's game was expected to bring out the largest crowd ever to witness a World series. Every reserved seat has been sold for weeks. At 10 this morning, 14,000 unreserved seats in the upper grandstand, retailing at $3.30 each, and 14,000 bleacher seats, at $1.10, went on sale.

ASKS POOLING

Knox Says U. S., Britain Must Combine Forces After War.

INDIANAPOLIS — (AP) — Secretary of Navy Knox declared today that once the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis has been defeated he United States and Great Britain must pool their forces "to stop new aggression . . . at its beginnings" in the post-war world.

The United States, said Knox, "must provide both the major power and the dominant leadership" for the task. The navy chief outlined his views on the nation's future international role in a speech prepared for the 64th annual convention of the American Bar association.

Repeatedly he emphasized American insistence on freedom of the seas—"It is for this we have fought two wars and now, for a third time, have declared we shall insist upon at whatever cost—come what may."

SILVER CITY, N. M.—(AP)—Mrs. Chase McReynolds, marooned by the flooding Gila river, shared her tree haven for 12 hours with three rattlesnakes.

URGES BOOST IN PAYROLL TAXES

Morgenthau Reported to Have Recommended 2 To 6 Per Cent Raise.

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., was understood today in congressional quarters to be urging immediate increase of the social security payroll tax from 2 to 6 per cent.

Morgenthau may have made the recommendation to President Roosevelt at yesterday's White House conference on society security. Mr. Roosevelt told a press conference later that he would send congress a message on the subject soon and that some increase in the payroll tax might be necessary. The move is designed to help deter inflation and absorb some of the post-war economic shock.

Mr. Roosevelt indicated that the social security system of old age pensions might be doubled by the addition of some 40,000,000 persons not now covered by the act. The social security board later estimated that only 30,000,000

Drivers License Sale 12 Per Cent Above Last Year

With the close of the three-week sale of drivers' licenses last night, Jack Berger, assistant secretary of the Auto club, announced today there had been a 12 per cent increase in sales this year, with 18,035 licenses issued as compared to 15,478 for last year's sale.

The last minute rush depleted the stock of chauffeurs' licenses last night, but new ones will be obtainable in two days, Berger said.

Auto club officials reassured late applicants that anyone who hadn't applied for license before Oct. 1, but had a 1941 license to surrender, still had until March 31, 1942 to apply for new licenses without taking a driver's test.

WESTINGHOUSE STILL AWAITS O.P.M. ORDERS

Plant Officials Unable To Predict What Refrigerator Cut Will Mean Here.

DAYTON BADLY HIT

General Motors Factory There Says 3,000 Face Idleness as Result of Program.

Although faced with a 43.2 per cent cut in the production of refrigerators for home use, officials of the Mansfield Westinghouse plant said today they were still unable to predict what effect the government's curtailment order will have on employment here.

In Dayton, a spokesman for the Frigidaire division of General Motors estimated that the reduced production of refrigerators "will mean a necessary lay-off of approximately 3,000 employes living in Dayton and adjacent communities."

Officials of the big Dayton plant said the potential number of lay-offs, representing about one-fifth of the total employes, was reduced somewhat by the transfer of workers to defense activities.

Asserting that "we have already laid off 700 workers," C. L. Van Derau, manager of manufacturing at the Mansfield Westinghouse plant, said "we are in no position to say what will happen until we see how the curtailment order will affect activities at the plant."

The 700 workers were laid off last week when operations of the refrigeration assembly department were cut sharply because of the company's inability to get materials for domestic production.

Meanwhile, Westinghouse officials pushed plans for installation of additional plant equipment to handle a $3,173,000 government order for binoculars.

When work on the huge order gets under way, it is expected to take care of a large number of workers in the plant who otherwise would be laid off.

Company officials were un-

INJURIES FATAL

Youth, 18, Dies After Auto Accident Near Bucyrus.

BUCYRUS—Donald Gibson, 18, died today in City hospital of injuries sustained when he was struck by a car as he stepped from behind a parked truck onto the highway near here early this morning.

Gibson and his father, Arthur, transient farm hands, had stopped off the highway across from the farmhouse of George Schieber for whom they were going to cut some corn.

The boy, sheriff's officers said, stepped into the path of an auto driven by C. L. Ross of Marion.

After hitting the boy, Ross' car swerved into the ditch and back onto the highway again, striking a car driven by Edwin Candel.

Organize Campaign to Boost Passage of City Fire Levy

Representatives of more than 40 civic organizations today prepared preliminary arrangements for an intensive campaign to obtain passage of the half mill levy for Mansfield fire department equipment at the November election.

Meeting last night at the Chamber of Commerce, the representatives planned to organize a committee to direct the campaign program.

Earl A. McFarland, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce fire prevention committee, was named campaign chairman. He is to organize an active committee later.

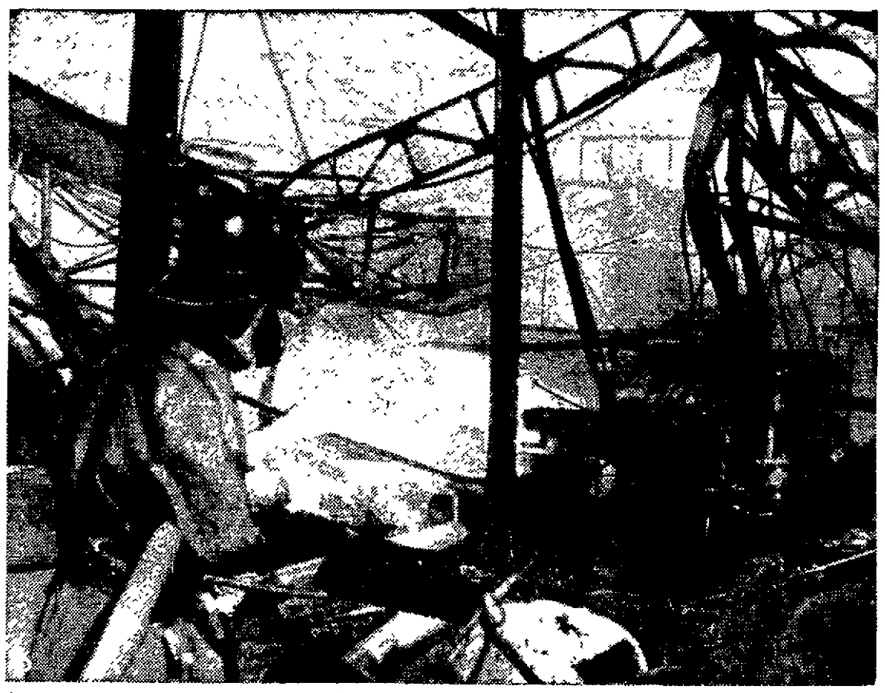
The half mill levy will provide the fire department with between $125,000 and $130,000 with which to rehabilitate fire fighting equipment, John G. Routzon, Chamber of Commerce secretary, estimated.

Money so raised will be used to modernize the Mansfield alarm system, buy new equipment, repair stations one and four and erect a new station in the southwest section of Mansfield, he said.

Meanwhile Mansfield city councilmen have already filed their intention to put the issue on the Nov. 4 ballot with the Richland county election board.

Routzon said that to be passed the issue must be voted upon favorably by at least 65 per cent of the city's electorate.

FBI Probes $2,000,000 Defense Plant Fire



Officers of the FBI are seeking to determine the cause of the blaze that destroyed the National Bronze and Aluminum foundry in Cleveland which was engaged in making aluminum castings for warplanes and army tanks. This picture was taken while firemen were still playing hoses on the red hot skeleton framework of the razed plant. Losses estimated at $2,000,000 make it one of Cleveland's worst industrial fires.

Today's the Day Tax Hits Budgets Harder

10 Per Cent Levy Goes on Luxuries As Uncle Sam Starts Collecting To Pay Heavy Defense Bills

Mansfielders began reaching deeper into their pockets today to help pay the heaviest federal taxes in the nation's history. The new excise levies will be double those of the first World war when the United States had an army overseas.

Levies averaging about 10 per cent on luxuries and a number of necessities went into effect at midnight, giving buyers an idea of what the national defense program is going to cost them.

Income and excess profits taxes which will hit pocketbooks an even greater blow will be collected on the 1941 earnings, but they are not payable until next March 15.

The treasury department is counting on the excise taxes to produce about $3,000,000 a day, the Associated Press said, but they represent only a minor part of the entire revenue program which is expected to bring $13,000,000,000 annually into the treasury.

Compared with that figure, the levies of the first World war day were inconsequential. During the banner year of that war taxes yielded only $6,694,000. Now, however, the nation has nearly 30 million more inhabitants to bear the heavier burden.

Among the items which will be taxed heaviest are automobiles, sporting goods, jewelry, luggage, travel tickets, and liquor.

HEDY INVENTS WARTIME DEVICE

Government Engineer Calls It 'Red Hot' But It's Secret.

HOLLYWOOD — (U.P.) — Hedy Lamar has invented a remote control device for use in warfare that is considered "of potential value" by the government, it was disclosed today.

Col. L. B. Lent, chief engineer of the National Inventors Council, said that of some 30,000 inventions submitted to the department of commerce, about 100 had been turned over to the army and navy. Of these, about a dozen are "red hot," he said, and the screen actress' invention is one of them. It is of a highly secret nature.

WON'T COMMENT

Sherwood Refuses to Talk on Revocation of Peer Parole.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — State Welfare Director Charles S. Sherwood repeated today that he had "absolutely no comment" on the pardon and parole commission's revocation of a parole for William J. Peer, one-time Loram slot machine operator.

Then he added: "I am not going to engage in a newspaper controversy with the commission or anyone who has been appointed by the governor."

In a sharp, if indirect, rebuke to Sherwood, the commission revoked Peer's parole yesterday on grounds he had been freed from London prison farm several weeks in advance on an Oct. 11 release fixed by the commission. Sherwood said then that the man was freed to obtain treatment for pernicious anemia.

EMPLOYERS SAVE UNDER NEW RULE

Compensation Amendments Effective Today Boost Benefits.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Amendments liberalizing and clarifying Ohio's unemployment compensation law and reducing the tax rates for hundreds of employers became effective today.

Under the changes passed by the last legislature, maximum weekly benefits payable during periods of total unemployment are increased from $15 to $16 and the duration of benefit payments is extended from a maximum of 16 to 18 weeks. Under the reduced contribution rates, employers will save approximately $30,000,000 a year.

Governor Bricker will speak over an Ohio radio network tonight, discussing the new provisions.

RESUMPTION OF WORK DEMANDED

Head of Burned Cleveland Plant Seeks Buildings; Loss $2,250,000.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—Beside the fire-blackened wreckage of the world's third largest aluminum foundry went up the call today to resume production within two weeks on millions of dollars worth of defense orders, chiefly for aircraft castings.

John L. Schmeller, vice president of the National Bronze & Aluminum Foundry company, hunted new buildings to speed a "back to work" movement and predicted resumption in a fortnight.

At the same time an appeal for organization of private fire-fighting brigades came from Keith Wilson, director of the Cleveland civilian defense council. He declared private brigades might have helped prevent the $2,250,000 loss in yesterday's fire through quick action at the start.

From a smoking 15-foot stack of oil-soaked burlap bags, containing aluminum shavings and scrap, to a roaring tide of flames which engulfed an entire plant, levelling its structure and equipment, was a matter of less than two hours.

So swift was the progress of the flames, fanned by a south wind, that the plant was lost before 19 fire companies could halt their spread.

Patrolman P. W. Johnson, summoned by the family, has a way with blonds. He just banged a heavy fist on the door and roared: "This is a policeman. You'd better come out."

Meekly Nelda Ann emerged. But she exercised her woman's right to the last word: "Fank you Mr. Policeman for letting me out."

Odessa Siege Costs Rumania 160,000 Men

Russians Report Enormous Losses of Foe Along Front; Germans Claim Armies Approaching Industrial City of Kharkov In South.

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(AP)—The Red army reported today it had crushed two battalions of German reinforcements rushed to a sector of the southern front to replace two shattered Rumanian infantry brigades.

(By Associated Press)

German siege armies attacking Leningrad have lost 100,000 men on the south and southwest approaches of the old czarist capital, while Rumanian losses in the siege of Odessa, Black sea port, have reached a total of 160,000 troops, the Russians reported today.

Red Star, Soviet army newspaper, said "enormous German losses in Estonia and in the direction of Novgorod" were not included in the Leningrad estimate.

On the southern front, German military dispatches reported that Nazi troops were approaching the big industrial city of Kharkov, in the heart of the Donets river basin, which lies almost at the eastern border of the Ukraine republic.

DNB, official German news agency, said Nazi fliers "taking part in ground fighting" around Kharkov blasted a railway network and demolished 33 trains filled with Soviet army supplies.

Kharkov, a city of 654,000 population, is a center of smelting, metallurgical and other industries.

The Russians, admitting the fall of historic Poltava, 80 miles southwest of Kharkov, where Peter the Great routed the Swedish invaders of Charles XII in 1709, declared that Soviet troops were forming along the east bank of the Vorskla river to block the Nazi onslaught.

Soviet officials reported that large-scale fighting raged at the gateway to the Crimea peninsula. Advices reaching London said German assault troops had now reached a point about seven miles south of Perekop, a city at the top of the Crimean isthmus.

On the northern front, aside from reporting a vast slaughter of German siege forces, the Russians said their Red armies had recaptured several towns on Leningrad's approaches and routed two more Nazi regiments.

Berlin said German artillery again shelled important industrial facilities in Leningrad "with good effect," while the Nazi high com-

Lausche, Blythin Chosen as Cleveland Has Light Vote.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—With only about half the electorate showing enough interest to vote, Cleveland's mayoralty primary today belonged to former Common Pleas Judge Frank J. Lausche, Democrat, and Mayor Edward Blythin, Republican.

Piling up 68,013 votes, Lausche held a 21,040 plurality over a field of five candidates in a non-partisan primary which saw Congressman Martin L. Sweeney, Democrat and Arthur H. Day, Republican, and former Ohio Supreme Court judge, run a poor second and third.

The fifth candidate, Arnold S. Johnson, Communist, polled only 1,430 votes.

Blythin's supporters gave him 46,973 votes, while 32,296 went to Sweeney, who campaigned on an isolationist platform. Day received 29,890 votes.

City Workers Ask Council For Wage Scale Increases

Unionized city employes today had petitioned city council to increase the wages of employes in the street, water and garbage department because of the rapidly rising cost of living.

The petition was filed with William J. Beer, jr., clerk of council, and was signed by Walter C. Reed, president of Local 128, and Thomas Gentille, secretary-treasurer.

The amount of the increase is "being left up to Council," Gentille said today, adding "I'm sure they will treat us fairly."

At least 80 per cent of the city street and garbage department is unionized, Gentille said, stating that the "local hopes to have a larger representation in the waterworks department by the end of the month."

The wage increase would affect approximately 61 employes in the three departments.

The rising cost of living is working a "hardship on the city workers who must pay just as much for their upkeep as the workers in the higher paid brackets," according to the petition which cited the increase in retail prices beginning Oct. 1.

This Little Pig Got Lost, Police Had to Find Him

While Mansfield nimrods were getting up before dawn to officially open the duck hunting season today, two Mansfield police officers staged their own hunting party in the neighborhood of Park avenue east and Bentley street.

An escaped "porker" from a stock truck started the chase about 3:45 a. m., when the night crew of the street department first sighted it and attempted capture. Failing in their efforts they called the police headquarters.

Patrolmen John Grohol and Eddie Steel arrived on the scene with a lasso which they tossed again and again before they could get a good enough hold on the pig to throw it. Every time they had the rope over the animal's head the pig would back out of the loop.

They finally took their "catch" to a garage at 263 East Second street for safe keeping. Meanwhile the officers learned that the truck from which the pig escaped had "Marion, Ohio" printed on the side.

NAZI LOSS HITS 100,000 DURING SIEGE OF CITY

Soviets Give Leningrad Death Figures; Germans Claim Approach to Kharkov.

mand reported the destruction of 45 out of 80 Soviet tanks in a clash with a German armored division.

A Russian spokesman acknowledged that Leningrad was still in grave danger, but declared that the German failure to capture the old czarist capital after long weeks of assault constituted "one of the greatest defeats of Hitler's war strategy."

But the Finnish allies of Germany announced that the Russians had suffered a reverse in the north. The Finns officially announced capture of the eastern Karelian city of Petrozavodsk, about 180 miles airline northeast of Leningrad and on the vital Leningrad-Murmansk railroad.

German bombers struck at Britain last night, sharply raiding five northeastern towns some hours after Prime Minister Churchill told the British commons that there was "a very serious shortage" in the Nazi air force.

The British bombed Hamburg and Stettin for the second straight night and also raided the docks of Cherbourg, France.

Both the Axis and Britain were girding for action in the Middle East but there was no indication either side was about to loose a general offensive immediately.

War materials from the United States were being unloaded in Egypt in such quantities that the docks were crowded.

Report Raids to Halt Bulgaria Unrest

European reports said today that a flooding tide of unrest and disaffection in German-occupied and German-dominated Europe had spread to Bulgaria and that police there had started a series of raids in an attempt to clean out dangerous elements.

A broadcast of Vichy radio heard in London reported as from Sofia that police had made a close search of Varna, Bulgaria's chief port, and had arrested 844 persons.

The importance of the raid was emphasized by the fact that Varna, Bulgaria's third city, is a main base for ships which Germany is mobilizing, apparently for land, sea and air operations against the Crimea and the Caucasus in Russia.

Berlin admitted that 58 additional persons had been executed in Czechoslovakia and that the total of executions since the German secret police imposed a state of emergency on Czech areas was thus brought to 84.

Berlin said officially that six persons were executed Sunday, 20 Monday and 58 Tuesday.

A United Press Moscow dispatch reported that the "national unity" underground radio station in Czechoslovakia had been heard urging the people to organize a general strike in protest against German repression.

Berlin Says Moscow Wants British Troops

BERLIN —(INS)— Wilhelmstrasse authorities claimed today to have received information that Moscow is demanding a British military expedition to the Caucasus as the only means of staving off a German offensive in that oil-producing region."

This assertion was advanced by a spokesman who termed British Prime Minister Winston Churchill's war statement to the House of Commons an example of "knocking in the dark."

Referring to the asserted Russian demands upon Britain, the spokesman declared:

"Churchill purposely answered Moscow indirectly with manufactured pessimism. He stressed the medium-sized British army. He actually meant there are no spare British armies available for an expedition to Russia."

Britain Again Warns Finland

LONDON —(INS)— Claims that Finnish troops have captured the Karelian capital of Petrosavodsk, on the shore of Lake Onego 100 miles east of the old Russo-Finnish border, provoked a new British warning to Finland today.

The Finnish claim was broadcast by the radio station at Lahti, and later announced at Helsinki.

British authorities significantly pointed out this government is still awaiting Finland's reply to the recent British warning. In that warning, Britain said Finland would be regarded as an enemy belligerent if she persisted in fighting beyond the former Russo-Finnish frontiers.

Furthermore, London authorities added, Britain may have to "reconsider the situation" in view of the Finnish capture of Petrosavodsk.

Japs to Leave Hunan Capital

SHANGHAI — (AP) — Japanese military headquarters in Hunan province announced today that Japanese forces were withdrawing tomorrow from Changsha, the provincial capital, because the "purpose of the campaign has been accomplished."

There were indications that the withdrawal already had begun, for Clark Lee, Associated Press reporter who flew over Changsha in a Japanese army plane yesterday, saw Japanese columns moving northward from the city, which the Japanese said they captured last Saturday.

Tokyo Pessimistic Over Talks with U. S.

SHANGHAI—(U.P.)—Information from usually reliable sources at Tokyo gave a pessimistic picture today of attempts to relieve tension between Japan and the United States, and predicted an early cabinet crisis in which Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye must face a showdown.

These reports suggested that the crisis would come in about two weeks and that the premier might again be forced to re-organize his cabinet if he has failed to make favorable progress in exchanges with Washington.

Italians Claim Enemy Ships Sunk

ROME—(INS)—The sinking of two enemy naval units by Italian vessels was announced by the high command today.

The war communique added one British fighting plane was shot down when seven fighters staged a daylight raid on an airdrome in Sicily.

URGES BOOST IN PAYROLL TAXES

probably would be affected—2,500,000 domestic servants, 4,500,000 farm laborers, 4,500,000 or 5,000,000 "self-employed," 1,000,000 or 3,000,000 part time or "casual" workers, 3,000,000 or 4,000,000 public employes, 3,000,000 or 4,000,000 charitable workers or WPA employes, and 6,000,000 or 7,000,000 farm operators.

Under present law workers and employers now covered by the act pay a one per cent payroll tax on the worker's salary up to $3,000 a year. The money goes into a fund out of which paid to workers retiring at 65 federal old age pensions are at scales related to the amount of taxes paid. This system is distinct from the joint state-federal system of pensions for needy aged.

An increase of the tax to a total of 6 per cent now would serve a double purpose, advocates of the plan maintain. In addition to being a deterrent to inflation, it would increase federal revenue.

While social security taxes are earmarked for a special fund, they are borrowed by the government. A greatly increased yield from the tax, therefore, would give the government an additional reservoir from which to borrow.

The estimated yield from the tax for 1941 is about $800,000,000 and for next year $1,000,000,000. An increase of 3 per cent on the employer and 3 per cent on the worker would bring in $3,000,000,000 next year even if the coverage were not expanded. With an additional 30,000,000 workers included this amount would be greatly increased.

of investigation took part with fire wardens in the search for causes, but Chief Fire Warden Patrick E. Barrett discounted the possibility of sabotage. His preliminary survey indicated spontaneous combustion in the scrap metal storage room at the end of the block-long plant.

Seventy per cent of the firm's output was for defense purposes, said Schmeller. The concern had just started on a $5,000,000 order for airplane fuselage castings to be shipped to North American Aviation Corp It was supplying castings to the Packard Motor company for Rolls Royce Merlin engines, and was making parts for gun turrets, anti-aircraft searchlights and Diesel engines.

Schmeller said arrangements were made to keep the 1,150 employes on the payroll. Elmer Davis, regional director of the United Automobile Workers (AFL) said workmen should register at union headquarters until they could return to work.

Paul Pician, 27, a receiving clerk, gave the first alarm when he saw smoke pouring from the scrap storage room. He said other employes grabbed fire extinguishers, but their attempt to halt the blaze failed in a roar of heat and smoke. Day shift employes of the plant were driven to the streets in a few minutes. At least four persons, workmen and nearby residents, received minor injuries in the scramble to evade the fire.

certain, however, when they will be able to get deliveries on equipment needed to divert the plant's operations to the manufacture of binoculars. When the order was received early in September, they said it probably would be "several months" before actual manufacture of binoculars could be started.

The office of production management, which ordered the refrigerator production curtailment, took a hand today in the Dayton picture, suggesting a training school to teach workers to do defense jobs to keep them busy.

Paul Williams, former secretary-manager of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce and now managing director of the Dayton Chamber of Commerce, said there was a scarcity of highly skilled workers in Dayton His statement prompted the OPM officials to propose the training school.

The order on refrigerator production brought similar unemployment worries to company heads in Cincinnati and Richmond, Ind, where it was predicted another 2,000 workers might lose their jobs unless they can be diverted to defense production. The Crosley Corporation operated plants in both cities.

creased from 20 to 25 cents per quart today. The tax on whiskies is computed at one dollar per gallon on 100-proof liquor. On brandies it is $1.25 per proof gallon.

Changing times have altered many of the methods and sources of taxation. Now important revenue comes from radios, mechanical refrigerators, electrical appliances. These things either didn't exist or were not rated consumer luxuries in those days.

On the other hand, the new tax act doesn't have taxes, as they did in 1918, on soft drinks, player pianos, silk shirts and other expensive clothing, candy, patent medicine, and riding academies.

'Tax Upon Tax' To Cost Ohioans $450,000

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— State Tax Commissioner William S. Evatt estimated today the new "tax-upon-tax" in Ohio, effective today with the new federal taxes, will produce $450,000 annually in added state sales tax receipts.

The "tax-upon-tax" will result from the fact that the 3 per cent state retail sales tax will be figured on a base which includes the new 10 federal sales tax levies on several "luxury" consumer items.

Evatt, who has asked Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert for a ruling on whether state law requires imposition of the state tax upon the U. S. tax, insisted that the "tax-upon-tax" is nothing new in Ohio.

"The fact is," Evatt declared, "that ever since we have had a sales tax in Ohio no deductions have been made from the retail selling price upon which the state sales tax is computed on account of federal excise taxes."

Of the $450,000 which the state will collect from the "tax-upon-tax," the tax commissioners estimated $140,000 would come from levies on jewelry, furs and toilet articles and the other $300,000 from other items.

You and Your Newspaper

STARTING today and continuing through next Wednesday, National Newspaper Week will be observed in the United States.

During this week an effort will be made by newspapers all over the country to focus attention of the American people on the freedoms guaranteed by the Bill of Rights—with special emphasis at this time on "freedom of the press."

As is true with some of the other privileges enjoyed by Americans, but denied to people of many other countries, freedom of the press is so taken for granted that often it is not fully appreciated.

Nor is it always understood that this particular "freedom" is accorded primarily in the interest of newspaper READERS, so that they may have opportunity to become informed on all subjects which involve their individual and group welfare, without restraint by government or other forces which might seek to prevent open discussion of various subjects to serve selfish purposes.

Development of American newspapers in the past fifty years has more than kept pace with rapid progress in other fields, with great enlargement in the scope of service and distribution as science and mechanical equipment have brought new facilities for news gathering, picture transmission and speedy production of papers.

The three recognizedly important functions of a modern newspaper are to print the news, to comment on the news and to provide entertainment.

Fair and impartial reporting of the news is an obligation that rests heavily upon all newspapers, and, to the best of their ability, this duty is performed frankly, fearlessly, without intentional bias or omission of salient parts.

Comment on the news has broadened in recent years from the restricted area of partisan organs into the larger opportunities of independent newspapers to express views uncolored by political party preferences, as was the case when even the smaller cities precariously supported two newspapers, one violently Republican and the other as ardently Democratic.

In the department of "entertainment" newspapers have also added much in variety and interest within the past decade, with a constant effort to give their readers informational, educational and inspirational material as well as popular "comics" and features.

As you read of government restrictions and censorship in totalitarian countries, where newspapers are permitted to print only what is passed out to them by press agents of dictators, consider the advantages of living in a country which guarantees religious liberty and freedom of speech and of the press.

It is YOUR freedom of thought and action that the newspapers of America are working earnestly to preserve!

For Enlightenment of Posterity

THE black granite monument that stands guard over the Time Capsule buried during the New York world's fair has now been dedicated. The inscription on its base explains the purpose of the deposit 50 feet below. In it, its promoters claim, are preserved for the future a record of history, faiths, arts, sciences and customs of the people now alive. Scientists and engineers designed it; scholars chose its contents. It is expected to endure for 5,000 years.

Many have forgotten what those contents are. The record says they include a woman's hat, alarm clock, children's toys, cosmetics, tobacco, watch, eye glasses, electric lamp, safety pin, pen and pencil. There are 75 samples of materials, such as fabrics, metal, alloys, plastics, coal and common seeds.

Several reels of microfilm record more than 22,000 pages of text and 1,000 pictures taken from books, articles, magazines, newspapers, reports and catalogs. There is also a 15-minute news reel of us and our times, and instructions for building a modern movie projector for showing it.

Finally there is a key to the English language, a new system of phonetic spelling, a "high frequency" vocabulary and diagrams to enable men of the future to understand and speak twentieth century American English.

It's a remarkable outlay, but even with all that help, we wonder whether the archaeologists of the year 6938 will really be able to understand our era.

Jaloppy Clean-up for Defense

AUTOMOBILE wreckers and scrap dealers in New York state have been meeting to figure out the best ways of junking worn-out cars. There are supposed to be a million or more of such traffic hazards and derelicts impeding progress or rusting in auto graveyards. By collecting them and melting them down, it is figured that at least 1,000,000 tons of steel could be salvaged. There would also be a notable benefit to the public in getting them out of the way.

And along with that job there might be a general cleaning up of other metallic junk around the country, including worn-out farm machinery and old iron of all kinds in city and country basements.

Broadening the Donation Base

AT CHICAGO UNIVERSITY the other day John D. Rockefeller expressed concern about the future of privately endowed universities, hospitals and charities. Less and less can they depend upon the contributions of men of wealth.

"The trend," he said, "is toward fewer privately endowed schools and toward more state-supported institutions. In order to maintain a balance between the two, it is necessary to broaden the donation base, with more persons contributing smaller sums toward maintenance."

In the transition many privately endowed institutions find themselves ha' hit and obliged to curtail some of their activities. But if the American people truly value education, medicine, research, and so on, and want them to be continued and improved, they will probably be glad to pay for them.

MAKING A BIG JOB OUT OF A LITTLE ONE

Listen World!

Free as You Think!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THEY'RE DEAD. Shot down, like beasts, in the hopeless murk of a Norway dawn.

Two bloodied bundles, twitching against a wall—that was their end. And they'd known it might be, yet had taken the risk. Upstanding youngsters, barely more than boys, with years of usefulness before them—but that meant less than nothing to the Nazi-Quisling mind. They were arch-criminals and deserved their fate. So it had come.

But what crime-of-crimes could have caused it? Had they murdered, robbed, spied upon or betrayed their overlords? Had they been caught with bombs in their possession, plotting against the All Highest? No, they had done none of these things. But they had done something which is infinitely worse by Nazi rating.

THEY HAD DARED TO THINK.

What was it all about, this sudden, overwhelming violence that had swooped upon them out of the night, robbing them of all individual rights, walling them away from other peoples. Who had willed this horror? What was happening to those other people now? No one could tell them; they were forbidden to ask. Yet, they must know or go mad.

And so, they'd sought the one escape which even German steel could not close. They'd listened secretly to the British broadcasts, passed the news as secretly along. And paid for it with their lives. Which was only reasonable, said the Nazis.

SURELY, ANYONE COULD SEE THAT FREE THOUGHT . . . FREE SPEECH . . . WERE THE GRAVEST RISK IN A CONQUERED LAND, TO BE SUPPRESSED BY DEATH IF NEED BE.

So reason the Nazis. And, for once, the Nazis are right!

For the most potent and perilous force on earth is thought. There are no limits to its power, for offense or defense. And those who dare to use it fearlessly are more dangerous than mobs of mechanized monsters.

America roars today with preparation for defense. But what is defense—and where can we find it? Does that sound like idiotic question No. 39,674? And do you think you can answer it by counting our guns and cannon, pursuit planes, bombers, tanks, torpedoes, dreadnaughts, destroyers and submarines? If so, go ahead and count. But I warn you, you'll never find the measure or meaning of national defense in such summaries. Guns and cannon are tools for defense. But the thing that ultimately determines liberty and establishes authority is the man at the other end . . . and the thought in that man.

THE MOST EFFECTIVE DEFENSE WEAPON IN AMERICA TODAY IS HER FREE PRESS. FOR THAT PRESS RECORDS THOUGHTS. IT MAKES YOU THINK. IT MAKES YOU CONSIDER OTHER VIEWPOINTS. AND EACH TIME YOU DO THIS YOU ARE ENLARGED, RENEWED AND ARMED AGAINST ANY CONTINGENCY.

You can pile armor on a man, jam a helmet over his ears, put a Tommy gun in his hands—yet he will still remain little more than an animated can opener unless he thinks. But the man who thinks can lick the world with a sling shot. Consider young King David and the giant Goliath or Sergeant York. These men accomplished miracles, because they thought. They could face the challenge of superior numbers and strength because they had faced the challenge of Thought.

Hitler is going to be defeated because he had denied and dammed up Thought. His troops are zombies—"Living Dead"—from whom all pride and self-respect have fled.

America, in whatever cause she serves, will win. SHE WILL WIN BECAUSE SHE HAS ALREADY PREPARED HERSELF FOR VICTORY THROUGH HER FREE PRESS. BUT SHE WILL NOT SURVIVE ONE DECADE LONGER THAN HER FREE PRESS LASTS. IF YOU CRAMP A PEOPLE'S MIND, YOU CRIPPLE THEIR SPIRIT.

DON'T LET ANYONE ROB YOU OF YOUR RIGHT TO THINK. DON'T LET ANYONE ELSE DO YOUR THINKING FOR YOU—HOWEVER SHREWDLY AND SUBTLY. KEEP YOUR PUBLIC PRESS REALLY FREE.

IT'S AMERICA'S "BLOOD BANK!"

Another Lineup Coming.

The method of collection proposed for the federal use tax on automobiles does not endear us any the more to that feature of the new revenue law.

Doubtless the best that could be devised, the reported mode of collection is by "sale" of windshield stickers through the postoffices. It is scarcely to be hoped that people will be any less dilatory about this than about the annual purchase of auto license plates. So the prospect must be accepted of lines forming outside the postoffices on the last day of the sticker sale, blocking traffic and trying the patience of all concerned.

Those caught in the jam will have only themselves to blame, of course, but the same cannot be said of the postoffice personnel, the principal victims of congress' lack of imagination. It has seemed evident all along a small rise in the federal gas tax would have brought in as much money, and without the trouble and additional overhead cost to the government.—Detroit News.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Codfish Aristocracy,"

New England version of nouveaux riches, "codfish aristocracy" was the sneering sobriquet applied by the old families of Massachusetts to those newly enriched, usually through fisheries, in which the cod figured largely.

The codfish aristocracy were "a class of people who, with wealth, are apt to be deficient in intelligence and good manners, and who, nevertheless, assume airs of importance."

They were "people whose appearance and manner would give them a respectable standing in society, but to which they are not entitled."

It was an apt epithet and remained in the language in reference to anybody who, devoid of culture and refinement, makes a vulgar, ostentatious show of affluence freshly come by.

A handclasp is supposed to be a sign of friendship. Don't shake hands so hard that it is painful to the hand shaken. It's bad form to "wring" another's hand.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. No, the Constitution of the United States vested the sole executive power in the president. These departments were created by successive acts of congress.
2. Teheran, the capital.
3. Francis Biddle. He is a great-great grandson of the first attorney general.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

The Wisest Way.

If I could but remember this,
That I am called to live
But one day at a time, it would
Much to existence give.

But in my eagerness I look
Ahead and vision all
The time before me, conjure up
What evils may befall.

To realize that life is but
Existence day by day,
That is the best, that is, indeed,
The very wisest way.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Wallace Ousts General Maxwell, Shows He Isn't Mere Figurehead

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Not many people noticed it, but a unique thing happened in the capital the other day—something which in the memory of veteran newsmen never has happened before. The vice president of the United States issued an extremely important statement on his own stationery, ousting General Maxwell as head of the Export Control Office and replacing him with Milo Perkins of the agriculture department.

This statement marks a very significant change, which, without any hullabaloo, has taken place in the relations between the president and vice president of the United States. Probably it is the most significant change since the days of the Founding Fathers when Vice-President John Adams succeeded Washington as president, and when Vice-President Thomas Jefferson later stepped into the shoes of Adams.

Since then vice presidents have not usually succeeded presidents except in case of death. Nor have the relations between the president and vice-president been particularly important, except, as in recent times, for a definite lack of cordiality between them. Vice-President Marshall, who served with Woodrow Wilson, was famous chiefly for his remark: "What this country needs is a good five-cent cigar."

Vice-President Dawes became famous for his rows with Coolidge and for having slept—perhaps purposely—through an important senate vote when Coolidge needed him.

Charlie Curtis, who never got along any too well with Hoover, became famous for his social row over whether his half-sister Dolly Gann should sit ahead of Alice Longworth at dinner.

Finally, Jack Garner was famous for his private refrigerator and for being vigorously opposed to much of Roosevelt's domestic legislation.

By and large, the vice-presidents of the United States have been figureheads who presided over the senate, were the champion diners-out of the Capital and knew less about White House policy than the average news columnist. The president, fearing potential rivals, gave them almost nothing to do.

But since the inauguration of January 20, 1941, this has gradually changed. Vice-President Wallace not only has been an active and very co-operative member of the Roosevelt cabinet, but more and more the president has called upon him to help iron out important administrative snarls, particularly in national defense, until now instead of being a diner-out, Wallace is definitely the No. 2 man in the Roosevelt administration. Relations between the two men are close, cordial and confidential. They operate as a perfect team.

Note—Interesting fact is that Wallace has assumed his new duties without neglecting his job of presiding over the senate. Secret of his ability to do this: he has no private refrigerator.

Duchess of Windsor.

THE WASHINGTON visit of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor smoked out a story that has lain long untold. Some time ago, rumor had it that the duchess was expecing a child. A newsman who heard the rumor was asked by his office to check on it. So he routed out the duchess's equerry and put the question very frankly.

This proper gentleman was shocked at the thought of having to get the answer to such a question, but he did his duty. He came back with this statement:

"Her Grace wishes to reply that before she is allowed to have a child she must obtain the consent of the British parliament, and—hmm—she'll be damned if she'll ask them."

Vivisecting England.

HARRY HOPKINS and Aubrey Williams were talking privately about some of the social changes taking place in England and the idea of studying them for the benefit of the U. S. A. All of which brought this remark from Mr. Hopkins:

"For God's sake, let's not send any more people to make surveys of England! The British are fighting a war and they have other things to think about. They are fed up on our surveys.

"They want food and planes and guns—but no more vivisection!"

New Lease-Lend Bill.

ROOSEVELT'S leaders on Capitol Hill have made a quiet check of his foreign policy supporters and report that the new $5,985,000,000 Lend-Lease bill will pass the house by a considerably greater margin than the original $7,000,000,000 L-L Bill, which was adopted by a vote of 260-165. This is because Republican opposition to Roosevelt's foreign policy has crumbled considerably.

But in the senate it is a different story. Here the administration expects to win, but by no greater margin than the last L-L Bill, namely 60-31. This is safe enough, but the interesting thing is the contrasting change of sentiment in the two houses of congress.

The house of representatives, where members are elected for two years only, always reflects more rapidly the opinion of the electorate. The senate, whose members are safe for a term of six years, is slower in reflecting public sentiment.

So in the senate, the new L-L Bill will be vigorously attacked by the isolationists, who are already secretly planning some emasculating amendments, chiefly one to prevent the president from using any more Lend-Lease money for aid to Russia. This, it can be stated, will be voted down.

Emasculating amendments are also planned in the house, where Representative Howard Smith of Virginia plans to tack on amendments out-lawing strikes in factories producing Lend-Lease materials. These also will be defeated.

In the end, the bill will pass in just about the same form proposed by Roosevelt.

Army Maneuver Notes.

POPULAR expression in the new citizen army, "Situation normal, everything snafoo" . . . Men of the hard-hitting 1st Armored Corps refer to their dynamic and popular commander, Major General George Patton as "Georgie." A former cavalryman, Patton rolls his tanks as he once rode horses—hard and fearlessly. . . . The Southern Bell Telephone company won the grateful plaudits of both armies by spending more than $1,000,000 in supplying the fast forces with complete day and night telephone service. . . . The crack 69th Anti-Aircraft Regiment made a valuable discovery during the war games—namely that the best place to bivouac was near a Louisiana parish house because open-handed hospitality was immediately forthcoming. . . . Church Point, La., in the "Cajun" country where part of the maneuvers took place, is one of the two places in the U. S. where carloads of buggies are still shipped in. The town has its own harness factory. . . Thanks to Lt. Colonel W. C. DeWare, public relations officer, the Third Army had the best equipped press section of the war games. "War" correspondents were supplied with cars and drivers and were able to cover the 125-mile fast changing front easily and thoroughly. . . . "Coin of the realm" of the "Cajun" country is the nickel. A ten-cent piece is a rarity.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—More phonograph records are sold in New York than in any city in the world. When you turn to your phonograph and put on a new record you go back to a Frenchman who was kicking around Paris 66 years ago with an idea. . . . This was the first concept of the phonograph. This man's name was Leon Scott—an odd name for a Frenchman. Somehow, little came of his efforts, and the project failed. . . . Twelve years later Thomas A. Edison secured more concrete results. . . . But when you made a record then, at great expense, you wore it out by playing it. In 1888, Emil Berliner got the idea of pressing duplicates from a master recording. . . . He tried it out, and it worked. Ten years later he was showing his device to an engineer named Eldridge R. Johnson, of Camden, N. J., and in that moment a new industry was born.

Sometime this week the Victor company will manufacture its eight hundred millionth recording. . . . That's a lot of wax. . . . Stacked into one pile, they would reach 1,100 miles in the air. . . . End to end, they would cover 138,889 miles. . . . If you wanted to play them all, the time required would be 5,321 years.

One of the greatest sellers of all time was a recording of "My Blue Heaven," sung by Gene Austin. It sold 1,000,000 copies. . . . Today, the most popular records seldom hit 500,000. . . . They say Sammy Kaye's "Daddy," Artie Shaw's "Frenesi" and Tommy Dorsey's "I'll Never Smile Again" hit between 400,000 and 500,000 in sales.

Caruso, Paderewski, Sousa, Mengelberg, Gabrilowitsch, Victor Herbert—today these great artists are all dead. . . . If it weren't for phonograph records, their technique, their style, their great mastery would be lost forever. . . . When he was recording Caruso would never drink any cold liquids. . . . Recording engineers used to keep bottles of hot liquids for him. . . . Among symphonies, Beethoven's Fifth, directed by Stokowski, is the best seller of all time. . . . Close to this comes Beethoven's Seventh (Toscanini), and Schubert's Unfinished (Koussevitsky).

ONE of the reasons, doubtless, for the spurt in Beethoven's Fifth is the "V for Victory" campaign of the British, the first four notes of the symphony being in the telegraphic meter of the dot-dot-dot-dash of the Morse code "V". As you must know, Beethoven composed it at the time of Napoleon's disastrous retreat from Moscow, and at a time when he, Beethoven, was almost stone deaf.

As a child, Paderewski was advised to abandon the piano and take up the trombone. . . . Even his piano teacher thought his hands were too small to go very far.

So, there's more to it than a wax disc and a pointed needle when you turn to a phonograph these days. . . . It goes back to 1875, and it represents a sort of human symphony within itself of great minds and great ideas and victories and defeats.

A Farmer's Diary

Refreshing

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE OLD MAN had changed from his Sunday clothes, when I came around the house, and was walking barefoot on the cool green backyard lawn, with his shoes in one hand. He walked so actively and spoke so heartily that one would think he had only passed the prime of life.

"Go right on in," he invited. "My younger brother is in the kitchen. We live here together."

"And how old is he?" I wondered.

"He'll be 79 his next birthday. I'll be 81."

"And you do your own cooking?"

"Yes—we buy lots of our food ready to eat from the grocery." He opened the door—"Hi, don't let the biscuits burn!" The other brother opened the oven of the old wood range, and the odor of hot biscuits filled the room.

"How long have you lived here?" I asked. "I've often passed you driving that span of mules, and thought I'd like to talk with you."

"Those mules are a part of our very living," the younger man admitted. They're as gentle as sheep, and they're bright, too. They know when Sunday comes as well as we do!"

"Yes," explained the other, "when I go out on Sunday morning with a white shirt on, they prick up their ears and make a break for the pasture as soon as I slip their chains. It's lucky, I guess, that we don't wear white shirts on week days. We wouldn't get nothing done. At that, they're kinda human, ain't they?

"Our great grandparents settled on this very spot in 1810. They owned over 1,000 acres. Our grandmother was born in this house—and our father. Grandpa and Greatuncle Tom used to haul freight with a big wagon and six horses from Baltimore, Maryland, to Cleveland, during Civil war time. Then Greatuncle Tom, who was 70, heard about the west. He took all his possessions in a covered wagon, tied his cow to the back, and started for Oregon.

"When he reached that country, to keep friendly with the Indians, he gave a new woolen blanket to the chief of each tribe. He got very rich, ranging cattle. He lived to be 105. When he was 100, they held a celebration and after the meal he ran a race with the chief cook. That's the kind o' stock we come from—but we've never got far from home. . . . Now set right up and have a try at these biscuits."

I did so and left these neighbors' home refreshed in body and in spirit.

TESTS PROMISE TO PUT COTTON TO NEW USES

U. S. Sponsors Research at New Laboratory In Louisiana.

NEW ORLEANS—(U.P.)—New uses and markets for cotton, economically the life blood of many Southern communities, will be worked out under a 24-point program of the Southern Regional Research Laboratory of the Department of Agriculture.

The program, to be put into effect as soon as the laboratory is completed on the shores of Lake Pontchartrain, is designed to offset the loss of foreign markets due to the European war and to make possible the lowering of manufacturing costs of cotton goods.

Operating on a theory that there is a need for research covering cotton uses, the department plans to cover products such as those which may be made of unspun cotton fiber and products formed by the lamination of unspun fibers with yarns, fabrics and other materials.

Department heads admitted, however, that considerable research is needed in developing present cotton products, and in improved processing machinery and methods of manufacture.

Increased outlets for lint must be found, spokesmen said, if production is to run anywhere near the level of the late 1920's or even on a level of the past five or six years. According to their figures, approximately 13,000,000 bales of cotton and 5,000,000 tons of seed are raised annually in the United States.

Under the research plan, the laboratory will tackle mechanical processing problems dealing with the development of new and improved processing machinery. Through this, officials hope, the quality of cotton goods will be improved and the cost lowered.

They also hope to develop efficient and economical machinery and methods for producing cotton yarns and fabrics by means other than those now in use and to determine the basic physical and other use requirements for new or proposed cotton products.

The laboratory also plans to turn its research forces to finding more uses for the unused properties of cotton, once thrown away but now forming one of the principal means of income for the planter.

Laboratory officials said they would tackle the processing and engineering problems relative to processing cottonseed oil and in an attempt to reduce costs and make the oil more available for industrial use. The leftovers from cotton generally are grouped as oil, cake, meal, protein, linters, hulls, hull fiber and hull bran.

They hope to determine the chemical constituents of cottonseed oil and the leftover products and convert them into such products as adhesives, glues, fibers, plastics and related products after the program gets under way.

WORK HORSE REDEEMED

OMAHA, Neb.—(U.P.)—Sam Katelman put $2 on his work horse, Babe, not to win, place or show, but to get her out of hock at the police station. Babe, hitched to her wagon, was parked in a downtown alley. A motorcycle officer tied a rein to his vehicle and "towed Babe in."

New Silhouette Resembles Tent Pole Say Stylists

By KAY DANIELS

NEW YORK—The top list of New York's leading specialty shops made fashion history this week by showing to the fashion press and invited guests from here to the West Coast the cream of their fall collections. Some eight hundred costumes graced the fashion runways as the prelude to what the smart woman will wear during the winter of 1941 and through 1942.

Generally speaking, the trumpet silhouette has given way finally to the tent pole silhouette—a change which will be readily recognized from the many versions of it you will see in your own stores. Fashion doesn't change overnight, and this straight-line trend has been developing for two years.

The Tent Pole Silhouette.

The tent pole silhouette emphasizes height in narrow, slim treatments, even to the hat which is usually high and softened by draped chin veils and scarfs. The best representation of the tent pole silhouette was shown by Sally Milgrim and was romantically inspired by Arabia, Persia, Turkey and India. This gives play to sumptuous fabrics, including rich Celanese satins, taffetas, handsome brocades, soft clinging jerseys, and novelty embroidered wools.

Varied Advice Soldier's Plight Brings

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

'Last month this column published a letter from a soldier who told of his problem. He felt it would be the right thing to marry the mother of his four-year-old son, rather than a girl of 18 with whom he had fallen in love, and who was in love with him.

He said that the boy's mother and he had drifted apart. They don't hate each other; they're just indifferent. She has been good, and he can't bear to join the service and perhaps never come back, leaving the boy and his mother without his name.

He has told the girl he loves, all about his past life, and she tells him to do the right thing. He says his conscience will torment him if he leaves his son's mother, living in the hand to mouth way she has since the boy's birth, and that she has been so straight, so wonderful as a mother.

Letters have come from all over the country commenting on this soldier's problem. Some of the letters have commended him for doing the right thing. Others have blamed him for not doing what they considered the right thing five years ago. And one letter has come from an old veteran of the Civil war saying that the soldier's problem was the same as his own, 63 years ago. He faced it by marrying his son's mother and has never regretted it.

Some of the letters follow:

Soldier's Problem.

"Stand by your son, give him your name, and when he grows to be a man he will be proud to own it. This young love you speak of can start life anew. She can meet some man who is free of burdens like yours, marry him and be happy.

"If she marries you she would never be happy thinking of how unfair you have been to another woman and your child. For five long years this woman has been faithful to her trust as mother. Make up to her for that time. She strikes me as being a pretty fine soldier herself, and let me tell you that to have a son is always blessed.

V. O K."

Soldier Gets a Trouncing.

"How can you wear Uncle Sam's uniform and know all it stands for, and still have to ask what is right or wrong in your case? You should be wearing a Nazi uniform, not one of Uncle Sam's. You had not learned to be a man when out of your selfish desires you failed in your duty to your son's mother.

"You have plunged her in mental torture and yet you ask if you should marry another girl and again take happiness to which you have no right. If I were the girl I'd spurn your offer.

BANGORIAN."

He Faced the Same Problem.

"I found myself in almost the identical predicament as you do now, almost 63 years ago. A few days before I was to marry a girl who seemed my ideal of perfection, I discovered indirectly that I was the father of a boy, born to a girl I used to run around with. I did not know how heroic this girl had been in caring for our child. Like you, soldier boy, my conscience was upset, and I told my fiance I thought this girl and our son had a greater claim on me than she had.

"My fiancee was magnificent and urged me to go to my little family and blessed us all. I have never regretted what I did. My wife died about three years ago and proved to be loyal and faithful for nearly 60 years. I've always been proud of my son. I am now nearly 90 years of age and hope your story, soldier boy, will have the same happy ending as mine.

A SOLDIER BOY TOO."

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"WAS IT hysteria?" my father asked incredulously; and I knew that he could not reconcile that mental picture with those of Lillian as he had known her through the years.

"No, nothing like that," Miss Whitlock answered. "It was something more terrifying, a tearless silence, an apathy, bordering on despair, and an inability to sleep.

"Mr. Underwood had been watching for us when we came in," the nurse went on. "I saw him take one quick, sharp look at her mourning costume, and her wig, but he made no comment on them. Nor did he ask her where she had been. He went up to her, held out his arms, and she slumped against him without speaking.

"I thought she had swooned, but she had not; and when he had carried her upstairs I undressed her with his aid, put her into bed and gave her a sedative which had in it food for her nerves as well as the calming of them. The only motion of her own volition was the extending of her hand to her husband as he bent over her. I brought a chair to her bedside, and he sat down in it, still clasping her hand. She went to sleep after a little, and her hand relaxed its grasp and slipped from his. But he is still there, watching her."

Harry Knows the Story.

"Yes, that is what he would be doing," I said, not realizing that I had made an oral instead of a mental comment, until I saw my father and Miss Whitlock give me glances which acquiesced in my dictum.

"She will not miss him if he comes down here?" my father queried.

"I am sure she will not," the nurse replied. "And of course, I shall sit beside her while he is gone."

Her tone held finality, and I knew that even if my father wished to dispute her decision, and require her presence with us in the library, she would not leave her patient for anything save a physician's orders.

"That will be splendid," my father said. "Now, I believe you said that you already have told Mr. Underwood what you have just related to us?"

"Yes, every word," she replied. "As soon as she was well under the sedative, it was safe to talk in front of her, and I told him everything. As I told you, he is completely at sea about it all. If he only could have found the letter she received in the mail yesterday morning, the one of which I told you which I am sure started her off on this bizarre journey."

"There is no trace of it?" my father asked.

"None whatever," she said. "Of course, I did not feel free to hunt for it, but as soon as I told Mr. Underwood about it, he directed me in an intensive search for it. Getting her ready for bed had shown us that it was not concealed upon her person, and her husband left no desk nor trunk nor bag in the rooms where she had been without a searching examination.

"But the result spelled zero," she went on. "Whether she destroyed it, or has hidden it in some odd place, we cannot tell, but there is no trace of it anywhere."

My father looked off into space for a long second.

The Chief's Test.

"You say she gave a cry of joy when she saw the envelope?" he asked at last.

"Yes. She looked as if she had had a glimpse of Heaven."

"Marion's handwriting, no doubt," he commented. "Are you familiar with it?" He fairly hurled the question at her.

"No, I am not," she said.

"Did you get a good look at the envelope before you handed it to her?" he asked.

"I noticed it particularly," she replied, "because it was so different from the other business and social letters in the mail. Usually, I pay no attention to the letters when I riffle them through to find my own, but there was something about this one which attracted my attention."

"Just a second," my father said, and turning to the brief case which never leaves his vicinity, he took from it the envelope enclosing the letter which Marion had written to Ronald. "Did the letter Mrs. Underwood received resemble this in any particular?"

Make-up For Pale Skins Now In Vogue

By MME. QUI VIVE

Well, of all things! A make-up stylist has startled the wits out of sisters by saying that fragility describes the beauty of the day, that we're all washed up with the athletic girls, the sophisticated woman and the dolly with the vivid complexion. A new type has arrived along with nutty millinery hair ornaments, ruffles and fluff stuff. We must be feminine and fragile.

Why, we ask, must we be fragile to be feminine? The majority of us have work to do. Many of us are carrying the hod up and down the ladder a good part of the day bringing home the bacon, wrestling with bills. All of which is a manly job. We think we're pretty smart to be able to do it. We'll look dainty; that's a part of the beauty formula, but we refuse to look as if, when a sudden breeze struck us, we would blow away.

If the make-up stylist is right, if we are going to do the clinging ivy stuff, which sounds pretty silly, the sweet little angel with big eyes and pale complexion will be It. It is our opinion that little Pale Face should dramatize herself. Sometimes it is a smart idea to play up the snowwhite skin by the use of colorful clothes and makeup that offers a pleasing contrast, but the average individual will prefer artifice that suggests health and vitality.

Pallor is natural to some girls and women. The skin is of thin delicate quality; the tiny capillaries that provide coloring to the complexion are not responsive. As often as not girls of this type have a normal appetite, powers of endurance beyond the ordinary. They can shop all day, dance half the night, look not one bit the worse for their prolonged activities.

Pallor and slenderness travel together. The florid woman is usually of large frame, pretty well upholstered with adipose cushions. She gets her ruddy complexion through a mistaken choice of food, partaking of too much protein, not enough fruits and vegetables. Again, of course, the high coloring may be due to some physical disorder. The complexion is a health barometer.

Makeup for the pale darling includes powder with a rosy cast, unless she is a true brunet with dark eyes and hair, in which case she should use a blend of rose and ivory. Rouge must be faint. The lipstick can be a gorgeous red, if one desires.

If the face is thin and cheek bones high a touch of rouge will make them less pronunent. Rouge casts a shadow. That is why it must be used sparingly on hollow cheeks.

For some time many movie stars have been affecting the oriental facial pattern, accentuating the bones, giving the eyes a slanting tilt through the remodeling of the eyebrows. But that makeup plan appears to have gone by the board. Maybe they are going in for fragility.

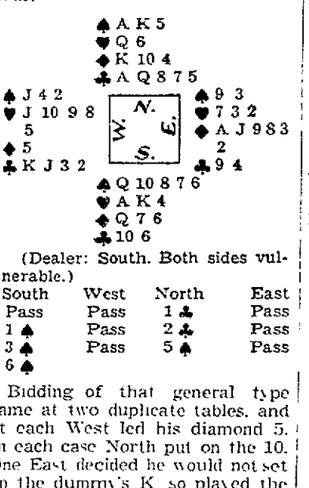
"The Authority on Authorities"

OPTIONAL BIDDING

Your partner will sometimes lead a card which can be read in either of two ways. If it is the lowest he can possibly hold in that suit—since you see all of the lower ones—it is probably either his fourth-best from a holding of exactly four, or else is a singleton. Note that if he held a doubleton or trebleton he probably would lead the fourth-best, which would mean he would have to possess lower ones to have more than four.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♣	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	5 ♠	Pass

Bidding of that general type came at two duplicate tables, and at each West led his diamond 5. In each case North put on the 10. One East decided he would not set up the dummy's K so played the J instead of the A. South won with the Q and, striving for his hard contract, led the club 10, covered by the J and Q. Then the club A won and the 5 was led. East ruffed with the 9 and South over-ruffed with the 10. Came then the spade Q and A, and the club 7 ruffed by the spade 7. After the spade 8 to the A, the club 8, now set up, furnished a discard of the diamond 7. The contract was therefore made, a diamond being given up at the end.

At the other table, after the diamond 5 lead was covered by the 10, East noted the diamond 2, 3 and 4 all in sight. Hence, he figured, West had either all of the missing higher ones, the Q, 7 and 6, or none of them. If he had them all South was blank, and the diamond A would never take a trick anyway. If West had none of them, the A play, followed by another diamond, would set the contract. So he played the A, led back the 8, and West trumped it, beating the contract.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

Why should North and South prefer a club game of their own on this deal to a three-trick defeat of the opponents' doubled contract of 4-Spades?

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, October 2.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

An exceptionally active and interesting day should be indicated by the predominant lunar aspects. All pertaining to writings, publicity promotion, travel and agencies should thrive. Several sudden visitations or changes are probable, and these may be of far-reaching effect on the life.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate an active, exciting and progressive year, especially if they are in literary, publicity or promotion work, or connected with travel, agencies or communications. A shrewd and quick grasp of opportunities should vouch for some success or satisfaction. However, a strange or sudden change may be imminent and a very clever handling of this would avert danger.

A child born on this day should possess much versatility, especially in literary or professional work. It may be impulsive or erratic and subject to sudden changes.

Graduates Face Study In Economy

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

More youths finishing high school and college will find jobs this summer than for many years. What will they do with their money? Most, unfortunately, will spend it on luxuries such as an automobile and costly clothes and on having a good time.

Wiser youths will not do so. They will limit their spending on luxuries. Some will help their families. Practically all who feel a family responsibility and are not too selfish will choose to pay board if living at home. Most wise youths will give a small portion at least to church and welfare causes. From this giving they will get spiritual and character values.

One of the wisest things for a youth to do on landing a job, if he has not had sufficient funds before, is to see a doctor for a thorough physical examination, then a dentist to check on his teeth.

Use Money Wisely.

Then many a wise youth beginning to earn will set aside a definite portion for self-improvement, for furthering his education. Just see what it would mean to the future of the average youth if, instead of buying a car, he were to spend the same amount on night courses in high school or college, or on a good home study course by correspondence, in case such schools are not available.

Any youth who denies himself luxuries, in order to improve his talents, not only grows in this direction but in character.

Furthermore, the youth looking forward to marriage and a family of his own would do well to deny himself some luxuries now.

Racket Correspondence Schools.

More than ever before, there are all sorts of false but lurid appeals to youth just graduating from high school by certain unscrupulous correspondence or home study schools. In spite of all the warnings by school authorities, hundreds of youths waste their time and money on them. There are also several very reliable correspondence schools which are rendering a great service. As a boy on the farm I once took a course from such a fine school and got much out of it.

Last year I referred to the pamphlet put out by the State Department of Education of the State of Wisconsin warning youth against "phoney" correspondence schools, telling them how to recognize them, and how to locate good correspondence schools. Recently the senior students of the high schools of New York City were given a copy of a six-page pamphlet entitled, "Traps for the Unwary," prepared by the counseling service for Juniors of the Westchester County Children's Association.

RENEW EFFORTS FOR TRANSFER IN SCHOOL AREA

Knox County Residents Make New Attempt To Withdraw From Butler District.

Property owners in Pike township, Knox county, renewed their attempt today to transfer their school district from the Richland county to the Knox county system.

A petition bearing signatures of 83 per cent of the property owners in the district was submitted to the Richland county board of education which is expected to act on it at its October meeting.

A previous petition was tabled by the board because it was filed too near the opening of school and had too few signers, County Superintendent Boyd Robinson said.

The petitioners want to withdraw from the Butler village district, but Robinson said he believed that would be impossible now since the Butler district board has passed a resolution requesting centralization. The proposal will be submitted to voters at the November election.

Under the centralization plan, sections of a district cannot withdraw by petition, he said.

Robinson said there are nearly 20 pupils in the district involved in the petition. They are attending the Butler schools this fall. Their transfer to Knox county would mean the removal of a bus in the Butler district, the county superintendent said.

The Richland county board previously approved the transfer of the pupils, but the Knox county board disagreed on their acceptance and the Knox district to which they might be annexed.

It is intended primarily for children of elementary school age.

Miss Dann, a Columbus school teacher for 35 years before her retirement last June, has frequently visited Mansfield.

She has contributed verse to magazines, but this is her first published volume.

COUNTY LEADS

Nine Enlistments In Navy Are Reported For Month.

Richland county led the parade of Central Ohio enlistments in the U. S. navy from the Mansfield recruiting station with nine men for the month of September, Recruiting Officer William G. Cox said today.

Nine of these were enlisted in the regular navy, seven in the naval reserve for trade schools, and three as petty officers in the naval reserve, while two were enlisted for reserve officers training in the naval reserve.

Cox stressed the fact that men registered for selective service are now given 30 days by their local draft boards to investigate opportunities offered by the navy, but warned selectees that they could not be accepted for naval duty after they have received their induction notices.

The Mansfield recruiting station, in the postoffice, is open daily from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., except Sunday.

How Pontiac is Helping America Prepare

Pontiac's part in National Defense is the production of rapid-fire cannon for the U. S. Navy. To speed this all-important task, Pontiac has two ordnance plants—one in operation and one under construction—manned by thousands of skilled craftsmen working night and day building this cannon which naval authorities say is "the most effective weapon of its size ever produced." Pontiac may build fewer cars, but our part in National Defense will never be neglected.

JOE DI MAGGIO
KIRBY HIGBE AND MILLIONS OF FANS AGREE—"THERE'S NOTHING LIKE A CAMEL"

PITCHING versus POWER. That's the story of the classic to come. And in the blazing speed and skill of Brooklyn's Kirby Higbe is all the pitching prowess so traditional in the National League. Carolina-born, Kirby Higbe likes his cigarette "milder, but with plenty of honest-to-goodness flavor." Naturally, he smokes the cigarette of costlier tobaccos—Camels.

JOLTING JOE of the "BOMBERS"
He's more than a symbol of American League power at bat. Joe Di Maggio is power itself. Game after game, for 56 consecutive games, he came through with at least one hit. And day after day, he chooses Camel cigarettes—because, in his own words: "They're milder."

SAYS KIRBY HIGBE: "When you've been in there throwing everything you've got, there's nothing hits the spot like a Camel. No matter how much I smoke, Camels never wear out their welcome. And I like knowing there's less nicotine in the smoke of Camels."

The smoke of slower-burning Camels contains
28% LESS NICOTINE
than the average of the 4 other largest-selling brands tested—less than any of them—according to independent scientific tests of the smoke itself!

SAYS JOE DI MAGGIO: "Camels have been my cigarette for years. There's less nicotine in the smoke and that extra mildness is important to a smoker like me. On top of that, Camels just always taste better. They're a cigarette that's really fun to smoke."

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—Donald Nelson, the priorities Pooh-bah says it is too late to put a ceiling over all prices to stop inflation and so we must attack only a few—not including wages.

Johnson

Floyd Odlum, who is charged with getting the little fellow a break in farming out defense contracts, says that started six months too late. After jimmying around for two years with inadequate tax bills, Morgenthau in an off-hand moment suddenly proposes a 6 per cent profits limitation tax on industry which would ruin most of small employers not already ruined by the unplanned and headlong priorities excess.

The supposed gasoline shortage was sprung on us out of a clear sky and rather absurd and apparently futile restrictions applied without warning.

If all these moves were so late, what explains the delay? The increasing difficulty of the situation has been apparent for more than a year. The means to attack it had been suggested over and over again by veterans of our first World war effort. That precedent stood on the record so plainly that it had been adopted by every other country in the war, including Germany.

But for some reason our government would have none of it. Various reasons were advanced. One was that this was a 1941 war and didn't need any 1918 advice. Another—and this has been persistent and imbedded in all the reasoning—was that this New Deal government was fully provided with talent and didn't need or want any non-New Deal assistance or advice.

It may be so, but it is a significant thing that all that old and rejected advice is gradually being reluctantly accepted under the iron clutch and compulsion of circumstances and—as usual—"too little and too late."

Since this column has been conducting a modest crusade for the hearing of these errors on the little fellow and the consumer, its mail has never been so copious. The instances are enough to bring tears to the eyes of a granite gargoyle. Don't make any mistake about it.

The elimination of small business through inability to get reasonable supplies is not something in the distant future. It is now going on.

The pinch on housewives through rising prices is nothing that they do not feel. Leon Henderson testified that the cost of feeding families has gone up 8 per cent in the past few weeks and is going further unless it is stopped. For the average family that hasn't enough income to save much, that is just 8 per cent taken out of papa's pay envelope—it is only a beginning. If it isn't stopped it is going to rise to 20 per cent or 30 per cent, and nobody knows how much higher.

This is a great hidden tax. It is a tax on those least able to bear it. Go on a little further with this trend. Whom do you hit? The rich? They can stand it, so you hit the poor. You hit them in the bread-basket painfully. You hit the very classes upon which this administration has relied for votes. Furthermore you do good to nobody.

There is scarcely a military commentator from Julius Caeser through Napoleon, Hindenburg, Von Ludendorff on who doesn't say that the morale of the civilian population in war is as important as the morale of the armies.

The growing tide of resentment among masses of our people against the wretched mismanagement and lack of planning may be in its first stages, but the evidences of it are unmistakeable. The high-wide-and-handsome boys in the seats of the mighty would do well to heed.

BURY MURDERED GOLFER TODAY, HUNT GOES ON

Authorities Seek Ex-Convict and Murderer In 4 States; Mother Still In Coma.

(By United Press)

LEXINGTON, Ky.—Pretty and popular Marion Miley, 27-year-old top-flight woman golfer, was to be buried today as police worked for the fourth day with only fragmentary clues to find the murderers who ended her career and critically wounded her mother.

Her mother, Mrs. Fred Miley, 50, remained in a coma at St. Joseph's hospital as the result of three stomach wounds suffered in the shooting Sunday morning in the swank Lexington Country club but investigating authorities were beginning to hope that she might recover sufficiently to be questioned.

Hospital attendants believed Mrs. Miley might recover if she lived through today. Her husband, Fred Miley, said last night, however, that he believed her condition was growing worse.

Police in four states were still on the lookout for a youthful escaped convict with a flare for golf and dancing and an older convicted murderer as suspects in the hold-up slaying, but no trace of them had been uncovered.

The slayers were believed to have taken $145 in receipts from a Saturday night dance at the club, although the discovery of $135 in untouched cash on the premises indicated robbery may not have been the only motive.

The men sought were Forest Turner, 24, believed to have a taste for country club society, and Sam Scarborough, 41, who escaped from Georgia's "Little Alcatraz" prison camp at Dallas and were thought to be heading for Lexington to visit a cousin of Turner's.

Meanwhile, the cream of blue grass society, sports fans who had followed Miss Miley's nine-year career as a national ranking golfer and many other residents of Lexington where the Mileys were popular were expected to attend the young woman's funeral this morning at St. Peter's Catholic church.

Afraid he was going to miss the broadcast of the opening game of the World series, Jimmy Lemley who sells magazines, cigars, and soft drinks at the courthouse, was looking for a radio this morning. Usually Jimmy has a set ready to go the first day, but he still had received no offer of one shortly before noon. He had some friends helping him round up one, however, and still had hopes of being in on the first game when it started at 1:30 p. m. today.

The household employment question that has baffled the various agencies trying to supply the demand for household help will be brought before the attention of another local group tonight when the Y. Would a conference of employers help?

It may be fortunate for Mansfielders that Ohio's Thanksgiving has been set for Nov. 20, the early date requested by President Roosevelt. Turkeys are expected to be plentiful for the early celebration, but scare for the later one because of the late maturing of this year's flocks. The big demand for the Nov. 20 Thanksgiving dinner will take millions of the "early birds," turkey growers say, while others which got a slow start this season probably won't be ready until December, about time for the Christmas holidays.

The cheering section at John Simpson Junior high school sports events isn't going to lack adequate leadership this year. Miss Martha Thompson, girls' physical education director, has seen to that. Yesterday she named Mary Ellen Seeburger as head cheerleader and Curtis Comer, Betty Morey, Betty Miller and Frances Gloss as assistants. And just in case something unforeseen should keep one of these "shout-directors" away from a game, Tioza Sazandoff, Norma Cotton and Barbara Oberlander will be on hand as substitutes.

15,000 RETURN TO JOBS AFTER BRIEF DISPUTE

20,000 Still Idle at Briggs Plant; Strike Ties Up 8 Pittsburgh Hotels.

(By Associated Press)

The Dodge division of the Chrysler Corporation in Detroit, employing 15,000 workers, resumed production this morning following an agreement between company and UAW-CIO union officials over a labor dispute which closed the main plant yesterday.

However, 20,000 other auto workers in the Mack avenue plant of the Briggs Body company and Chrysler's Plymouth division remained idle because of a labor dispute in the Briggs frame department. Briggs supplies Plymouth with automobile bodies.

The Briggs plant was shut down after employes in the frame department refused to work with four men transferred from the door assembly department. A CIO spokesman said the Dodge plant dispute centered over methods of ventilating paint spray booths and drying ovens. Dodge officials declared some 300 men struck in protest to the laying off of fellow workers.

The eight largest hotels in Pittsburgh were hit last midnight by a strike of 2,000 bellboys, cooks, waiters, elevator operators and other service workers, who demanded 15 to 20 per cent wage increases. There are 1,800 separate wage classifications, ranging from $20 to $180 a month. The hotels made no effort to operate, and turned away persons seeking rooms. Involved were the William Penn, Fort Pitt, Pittsburgher, Keystone, Roosevelt, Webster Hall, Henry and Schenley.

Washington, D. C., hotel operators faced the threat of a similar walkout. Three thousand employes of 16 leading hotels declared they would strike at midnight tonight unless their wage demands were met.

A delegation of striking Pennsylvania hard coal miners conferred at Washington yesterday with John L. Lewis, president of the CIO United Mine Workers, but apparently made no headway toward settling their dispute. More than 20,000 anthracite miners have been idle in recent weeks protesting increased union dues and assessments.

600 Workers Strike At Plum Brook Plant

SANDUSKY —(AP)— More than 600 workers at the Plum Brook Ordnance Works struck today, Captain H. H. Lewis of the constructing quartermaster's office reported.

He said 275 office workers, 250 AFL truck drivers and 105 AFL iron workers were idle. Demands of the truck drivers and iron workers were not made known immediately, although the drivers were reported seeking an increase of 15 cents an hour in their 75-cent wage.

The AFL office workers union had summoned its members on strike last night.

Sally Rand Will Wed and Keep on With Fan Dancing

COVINGTON, Ky.—(UP)— Sally Rand, who has danced fan-clad in theaters and night clubs from coast to coast, revealed today that she will marry Thurkel (Turk) Greenough, 36-year-old Montana bronco buster, "sometime around the first of the year."

"But the fan dance will go on," Miss Rand said. "And I'll be leading it.

"We're going to live on Turk's ranch at Red Lodge, Mont., and I'll probably be riding plenty of horses from now on, but I'll go on with my fans and bubbles."

Greenough, stopping here to visit Miss Rand before proceeding Friday to New York to participate in rodeo at Madison Square Garden, confirmed the approximate marriage date as well as the fact that his fiancee wouldn't leave the stage.

"Sure she'll go on with her fan dancing," Greenough said. "You can't step out of one of those things (fans), you know."

Greenough said he first met Miss Rand in 1935 the day he won the bronco busting contest at Cheyenne, Wyo. He said they had been considering marriage for some time but wanted to wait until they "were sure it was love."

SUSPECT CHILD WAS KIDNAPED

Officials Fear Girl Not In Woods As Hunt Reaches Fourth Day.

CONWAY, N. H.—(INS)—The fourth day's search for tiny Pamela Hollingworth who wandered into the dense woodlands at the base of Mt. Chocurura on Sunday, opened today under the dread suspicion that she might have been kidnapped.

While the five-year-old child's father, Joseph E. Hollingworth, still rode mountain roads on a sound truck calling "It's daddy, Pam, where are you?," Sheriff James Welch reported:

"The chances are 10 to 100 that she is not in the woods. I think this is another Walker case." The sheriff referred to the disappearance of six-year-old Sara Walker almost exactly the same spot six years ago. The Walker child never was found.

RED PILOTS AT OHIO AIRFIELD

36 Russians Get Training In Maintenance, Operation of U. S. Planes.

(By United Press)

DAYTON — A group of 36 Russian pilots and flight technicians are receiving instruction at Patterson Field in the operation and maintenance of U. S. army warplanes.

Presence of the Soviet airmen at the army air field was disclosed by John J. McCoy, assistant secretary of war, on an inspection visit here. The Russian group has been here for more than a week.

McCoy, who arrived in Dayton for an overnight stop enroute to the west coast, said a school had been set up at the field to train the Russian mission which flew from Russia to the United States, arriving in Seattle, Wash., Sept. 6.

Heading the Russian group is Gen. Mikhail Gromov, Russia's star test pilot and leader of the non-stop Moscow-to-San Francisco flight over the North Pole in July, 1937.

Patterson Field has been the center of tests on new American warplanes as soon as the new production planes of a new type are finished.

For this reason the field was selected as the best location for familiarizing the Russians with the latest type American planes, it was stated.

The mission will remain at Patterson Field for several more days, it was reported.

DOCTOR AMPUTATES FOOT OF WOMAN PINNED UNDER WRECK

(By International News Service)

MT. VERNON — Saved from bleeding to death by a country doctor who amputated her foot while she was pinned in the wreckage of an automobile, Miss Vera Diersing, 30, of Columbus, was recovering at a Mt. Vernon hospital today.

William A. Jackson, of Los Angeles, driver of the car suffered only a fractured wrist and bruises when his machine hit a steel bridge near Mt. Vernon.

Soon after the crash, 63-year-old Dr. C. L. Harner, Knox county coroner, was summoned from bed and went to the scene with Mrs. Harner, a trained nurse Miss Maxine Ralston of Columbus, another trained nurse, also was at the scene.

While a stranger held the flashlight, Dr. Harner amputated Miss Diersing's foot and, with the aid of Mrs. Harner and Miss Ralston, treated the injury until Miss Diersing could be taken to Mercy hospital at Mt. Vernon.

There, because of dirt and gravel in the wound, Dr. Harner and Dr. John Drake of Mt. Vernon, amputated slightly more to a point one-third between the ankle and the knee.

Dr. Harner and the nurses described Miss Diersing's conduct as "very brave." She watched the operation as only local anasthetics were used.

Before the amputation, attempts were made to pry Miss Diersing loose, but they were futile. Miss Diersing's foot was held by a piece of bridge steel. The owner of a blow torch refused to use it, fearing he might burn her seriously.

HELD SANE

Tests Over, Butler Man To Face Judge on Charge.

Found sane by a board of examining physicians, Walter Ruth of Butler, who pleaded guilty two weeks ago to an indictment for altering a check, was to go before Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston today for his sentence.

Ruth, who has a prison record, requested the mental test after entering his plea. He said he believed himself insane because he had tried three times to take his life.

Because the trial of an equity case extended through this morning, longer than expected, Prosecutor Harold Lutz said Andrew Kozma, Mansfield, who was scheduled for arraignment today, will be taken before Judge Huston Friday morning.

Kozma was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of discharging firearms. A shotgun he was holding was discharged in his home on North Mulberry street, the charge crashing through a front window just over his wife's head.

CHAPTER XV

Because Millicent Mayfield had a load on her mind she told her two daughters she wanted to spend the evening alone in her room. That was all right for Lillian who had a date, but not for Baby Doll who hadn't. Accordingly, Baby Doll laid plans for "the gang"; unless history completely refused to repeat itself tonight friends would arrive uninvited.

Martin Deale was the first of them. He was meticulously dressed, as usual, and gave his hat to Jason with the customary gentleman-of-leisure air which Jason himself admired.

"Hurry up, slow poke." Baby Doll called to Martin from the porch. "I already have cards dealt. Lil-lian!"

"Hello Mart," Lillian came through the hall then. "Sorry, Sis, I can't play tonight. You and Mart enjoy yourselves."

"You look lovely this evening, Lillian," Martin smiled. "I was hoping that perhaps we might—"

"Thanks millions, Martin, but Thad is calling for me. We may sit in with you all later, though. We'll bring out ice cream. Or I'll see if Nora has any in the refrigerator."

Hospitality at work as always here. Martin liked that, but he didn't like the other. This was the third — no, fourth — time recently that Thad Monroe had preempted Lillian and taken her away from the established friendly set, he reflected.

Even now Thad came up front and rang the doorbell, and oddly he was a little too carefully courteous to Martin there in the hall, a little too mannerly for the old easy-going Thad Monroe. Whatever had sobered Thad all of a sudden lately? Martin frowned a little, meditating on his own unspoken question.

"We have to go to a movie," Lillian apologized for her departure again. "See you later, Mart. And if you decide to make love to Baby Doll I can tell you that mother's safely upstairs, but that Baby Doll herself is fickle and giggly. 'Bye!"

She was trying valiantly to be gay and yet somehow it didn't jell. Her words, her tone, her odd manner, were a contradiction to the expression in her eyes and if Martin didn't actually understand that, he at least sensed it. It was a carry-over from the atmosphere or mood that old black Jason had observed earlier this day.

"They didn't ask me to ride with them or go to a movie with them," Martin told himself, from the front door. "They usually do! It—it's what we've always done here. All of us."

That was true. Formal "dates" had really been a rarity for Lillian save on dance and party occasions. This was just an average nothing-special night, just a picture show night. Martin recalled dozens of times when he and Thad and Lillian, and sometimes the shy M. J. Parker, had all shared a picture show and drive afterward, picking up other friend ad lib, rollicking in and out of the Mayfield home in utter freedom. He noted, now, that M. J. Parker wasn't present, indeed had seemed to stop hanging around the gang here lately.

Mrs. Mayfield heard Martin and came downstairs anyway She held a rolled issue of the Dallas Morning News for the previous Sunday and she spread it now for the young man.

"These are pictures, of the oil boom," she explained. "They are most interesting, don't you think, Martin?"

"Yes, I do," said he, politely. He had already seen them, as had practically every one else in Rangeville. But he studied them anew.

"There are six derricks in the main town area now," she went on, as if to herself, "and if—"

"Disgraceful, positively disgraceful!" Martin murmured.

"I love this view of North Marshall street. So peaceful. So pretty. See how the picture is framed in great trees, Martin? And our own home—of course I like that best!"

"I should think so, ma-am. This place is beautiful."

"The little write-up under it says, 'The boomtown's loveliest dwelling, home of Mrs. Millicent Mayfield, an estate of oaks, crepe myrtles, honeysuckles and cape jasmines, with mock oranges for added fragrance, a place noted for gracious living.' Isn't that sweet, Martin?"

Martin agreed. He found it easy to be polite here. Baby Doll came to huddle with them over the paper before urging him to cards again, nevertheless Martin's mind was detached. He no longer wanted to stay in the Mayfield home this evening. He had an unexpected urge to go off alone, now that Lillian had departed.

It took a quarter-hour to excuse himself gracefully and go back into the night. He went straight back to his own home and to his room. Removing only his coat, he paused to study his reflection in his mirror.

What he saw was satisfying. Martin Deale not only had that intangible but highly esteemed something known as background, he had personal appearance. Features were well chiseled, forehead high, mouth firm (too firm, he sensed on occasions). He knew how to dress tastefully. He upheld everything the Mayfields stood for. He had been a family friend since infancy — and perhaps that was it! Perhaps he had just taken too much for granted where Lillian was concerned.

He sat down, reflecting on those points, and turned to his desk. Lifting a panel slowly, he brought a portable typewriter up and presently was deep in what he knew to be creative endeavor.

"Not of the years that flow in endless rhythm,
Nor of the beauty which on every side abounds,
But of the golden moments—"

He struck out the third line and tried a new one. That, too, seemed forced, and he was impatient with it. Poetry wasn't coming easily tonight as it sometimes did. Once a month or so he could sit down for an hour and do a poem which he felt to be expressive and beautiful. A few years back, in fact, he had liked to imagine himself a second Edgar Allen Poe and still had hidden away in his desk some of the lyric fruits of that period. Now, though, he realized that he was distracted, he would go walking again under the half-moon light, seeking inspiration.

Inspiration of a sort came, especially when he turned from Webster walk with its tall poplars in sentinelled array onto the softer beauty which was North Marshall. He walked slowly, drinking it in. He held his head back to see the moon pattern through spring leaves. A locust began its shrill fiddling and some funny frog in Mrs. Haltom's lawn pool began calling "Ca-rank, Ca-rank!" Martin smiled indulgently. He wanted to bring his easel and brushes to paint that pool scene again, and darned if he wouldn't put that frog in prominently this time. He would do another avenue-of-trees study, too.

Suddenly he began whispering — "To him who in the love of Nature holds communion with her visible forms she speaks various language." As suddenly he stopped. Damn it, why couldn't a man remember all of Thanatopsis? Both his mother and grandfather had loved that piece and had often quoted it to him, just as both of those aristocratic East Texans had themselves written poetry on occasions. Mrs. Deale had seen a few of her poems published, in fact. Martin had them all clipped, one of them framed over his bed at home. Both sides of his family had been literate, even esthetic folk, and he was proud of that.

He walked on down past Judge Brookfield's mansion, angled through the Wettermark grounds (old man Wettermark who swindled a firm so as to bankrupt it, back in 1898) past the McDavids and up the hill where Bob Gould lived so quietly for so long. Iron Horses' heads with hitching rings in their noses still stood as posts along the Gould front, enduring bits of yesteryear.

"If Thad reasons that Tower is crowding her, then it's high time I took action myself," Martin was thinking, suddenly immune to the night beauties around him.

Somebody in a car turned a spotlight on him and he heard youthful laughter drifting away. High school kids. Full of brass.

He resented their intrusion on his privacy. Other cars passed and he didn't notice them, but there were only a few pedestrians on this quiet residential street here at 9:30 or 10 at night. He turned to go back, wondering vaguely why some urge prompted him to walk again near the Mayfield home even though he hadn't wanted to visit inside it tonight.

He had come within a block of the place when he thought he saw a motion in tree trunk shadows a few feet ahead. He gave no thought to that; he was still preoccupied, planning a definite step-by-step campaign for wooing Lillian Mayfield or rather for bringing his long case to an immediate showdown. He wondered whyever he had waited so long, passively enjoying life and confident of its future. That contemptible Dallas Power had forced in, and even Thad Monroe had awakened immediately, whereas he himself—

"All right, buddy!" somebody growled at him. "Just stand still!"

Instant alarm froze Martin.

"What is it?" he managed. "Who are you?"

He lifted an arm as if in defense, but a man on each side grabbed him.

"Take it easy," the gruff voice warned, "or I'll let you have it."

PROPHECY TRUE

FRANKLIN, Ind. — (U P) — Remember those class prophecies in the high school yearbook? Here's one that came true.

Fourteen years ago, the 1927 Ma-Ho-Hi, Masonic Home high school annual, prophecied that in the 1940's Leroy Bradnick would be an officer in the field artillery.

Today, Bradnick is a first lieutenant in the field artillery at Bowman Field, Louisville, Ky.

FEATURE DOUBLY TRUE.

BORGER, Tex.—(U.P.)—A local theater was damaged by fire. Titles of the double feature, appropriate or not, were "Too Hot To Handle" and "The Rains Came."

DEALERS FIND USED CARS UP

But 'Run-Away' Tendency In Price Does Not Appear In Survey.

DETROIT —(U.P.)— Used car prices are advancing but the charge that the market is developing "run-away" tendencies thus far is without basis in fact, according to a survey by the National Automobile Dealers association.

A tabulation of 38,503 dealer sales of used cars throughout the country showed an average price rise of about 2 per cent, the association said, with the largest increase in the later models. In 1937, it was pointed out, used car prices jumped 15 per cent above normal.

Although denying used car prices were soaring under impetus of the defense program, the dealers' group conceded that "inflationary forces" may boost them to equal or exceed 1937 levels.

The association said 1940 models were bringing prices 4.59 per cent above normal; 1939, 2.37 per cent above normal; 1938, 1.72 per cent above; 1937, 2.24 per cent above; 1936, 1.47 per cent above; 1935, 1 per cent below normal; 1934, 10.20 per cent below, and 1933 cars, 11.31 per cent below normal.

Reasons for the 1937 and 1941 used car prices differ sharply.

"In the 1937 market," the N. A. D. A. said, "pressue on prices was from the bottom. People were returning to work and needed cheap transportation, so that the prices of older cars stiffened before those of later models.

"In the current situation," it was explained, "the market prices of used cars are being raised from the top, with a very active new car market leading the way to relatively higher prices for later models of used cars."

Defense Training Classes Still Have Vacancies.

Courses in sheet metal work and machine shop practice are still open to enrollees in defense training classes at Mansfield Senior high school, according to C. W. Handley, manager of the Mansfield branch of the Ohio State Employment service.

Handley also announced that approximately 200 men, ages 18-25, could be placed at once in courses in auto mechanics, sheet metal work, radio, and machine shop practice at the Charles Mill NYA Resident center, and that bus or truck transportation to and from the camp was being planned for enrollees living in the city who have no other means of going back and forth.

Tyger Mentor Speeds Up Offense for Sandusky Game

Sport Podge by Rex Hess

Toledo's Dick Morse, who played third base for Mansfield's Braves this past season, was a visitor in our fair city yesterday.

"I understand," I told him, "that you are never home when people visit you in Toledo."

"I know what you mean," he responded. "Chuck Byers was up to see me one day, and I wish I had been home.

"I was out riding horses, bareback, that day, and I would much rather have been home to welcome Chuck to Toledo.

"There were clothes lines strung all over the back yard where I was riding, and the horse made a point of galloping head-on toward each and every clothes line. He was trying to give me the old brush-off.

"I ducked the clothes lines, but when he made a break for the barn door there wasn't room enough for both of us to go through. He brushed me off that time for sure. I wound up by riding a pony."

* * *

So much for Cowboy Morse. Let's get back to football.

The Massillon Tiger is looking with increasing respect on the gridiron antics of the Mansfield Tyger.

Rounding up the week-end doings of future Tiger foes, the Massillon Independent says: "The victories of Mansfield and Alliance were the second of the season for each. They loom as two of the Tigers' toughest opponents."

* * *

And what about Canton McKinley? you ask.

The Independent gets a great deal of satisfaction out of the fact that McKinley was held scoreless for the first quarter by Akron South, even though the final count was 26-0.

* * *

You reads the scores and takes your pick,
Then try to make the dope sheet stick.

* * *

Coach Ben Schwartzwalder of the McKinley Bulldogs is reported in the Canton Repository as being not too pleased by the showing his boys made against Akron South. There is a difference between that 26 score and the 62-0 count rolled up by McKinley against Canton Timken, although the figures are the same.

Canton gets a real test this week-end from Champaign, Ill., winner of three straight victories this fall, and a power in Illinois high school football for the past 10 years.

McKinley scouts report that Champaign is fast, aggressive, and well coached.

* * *

They tell me Champagne is also fast, aggressive, and full of power, but I wouldn't know about that.

Pitcher Stars For Union Nine

With Harold Mattox, right-handed speedball pitcher, hurling a one-hit game, Union high school defeated Ontario High baseball team 6 to 0 last evening at Ontario.

Mattox fanned 14 Ontario batters, while Elliott, his mound opponent, whiffed 12 of the Union hitters. Mattox helped his cause along with a home run, while Hammett of Union also hit for the circuit.

RED BIRDS EVEN LITTLE SERIES, BEAT ROYALS

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The wee world series between Montreals Royals, International loop kings and the Columbus Red Birds, American Association champs, today was right back where it started—all even.

The Birds blasted two Royal moundsmen for 10 hits, including a double, triple and homer, last night to win, 5-4, giving each club two victories and two losses in the junior diamond classic.

Yankees Favored In Series

Annual Baseball Classic Starts In Bronx Stadium.

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK — (AP) — Starting shortly after noon today, this ordinarily sophisticated community is due to go mildly hysterical for a time over the world series struggle between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Yankees.

There have been play-offs between the Yankees and their next door neighbors, the Giants, but they didn't generate anything like the excitement surrounding this series.

* * *

From the moment the first ball is pitched at 1:30 p. m. until the final out, there will be a condition bordering on suspended animation in the city's five boroughs and, to a lesser extent, in adjacent territory.

* * *

Only a fortunate 70,000 or so will be jammed into the big arena itself, actually watching the rival heroes from opposite sides of the East river battle it out in the opener.

The Yankees, runaway winners in the American league race and home run hitters extraordinary, enter the struggle pronounced favorites to capture the first game and the series.

Brooklyn fans, having watched their so-called "Bums" fight their way to victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in a hot National league campaign, are not in a mood to worry about statistics at this late date. They believe that theirs is a team of destiny.

* * *

Perhaps it is, but the hard facts remained that the Yankees were leading off today with their great veteran righthander, Charley Ruffing, one of the outstanding money pitchers the game has seen, and that the brilliant array of sluggers who mauled the American league were waiting impatiently to level their sights on Brooklyn hurling.

* * *

The Dodgers, taken by and large, look almost as good as the Yankees. As Manager Leo Durocher has not failed to point out, they had to be good to beat out the Cardinals. Their pitching, judging it strictly on won-and-lost records, is more impressive than that of the Yanks.

But the Yankees have that big punch—the sort that forces rival pitchers to bear down nervously every minute and is as likely to break up a ball game with two down in the ninth as at any other stage of a game.

Although Durocher had declined to make it official, Brooklyn's pitching choice today was expected to be Curt Davis, the gaunt righthander who came to Brooklyn almost unnoticed in the deal whereby the Dodgers acquired Outfielder Joe Medwick. Davis has made a notable comeback this season and was particularly effective against the Yankees in training games last spring.

* * *

The other Dodger possibility was Whitlow Wyatt, one of the club's two 22-game winners. Wyatt was, in fact, the more logical choice, but it was suspected that Durocher intended to use strategy, taking a chance that Davis might have one of his "right" days and set the Yanks on their heels.

The assumption was that Charley Keller would start in left field for the Yankees, even though he still was limping slightly from the ankle he fractured several weeks ago.

The first two games, today and tomorrow, are scheduled at the stadium, with the teams moving over to Ebbets Field in Brooklyn for the next three.

Familiar Sight at Charles Mill as Duck Season Opens

This is going to be a familiar sight for Richland county hunters at Charles Mill from today until Nov. 29 when the season closes. Richland county, say sportsmen, is not on any regular waterfowl flight, but does get some birds from every type of fowl migrating. These birds are brant. Hunting in the southern half of the Charles Mill reservoir will be permited this year.

SERIES WEATHER

NEW YORK — (INS) — The weather forecast for today's World Series game: "Brief showers in the forenoon, then mostly cloudy and somewhat warmer."

CLASS A BUCKET LEAGUE TO MEET

The City Class "A" Basketball league will have its first 1941-42 organization meeting Wednesday evening, Oct. 1, at 7:30 at Yuncker Brothers Sports store. All managers of teams entering league and all sponsors, desirous of sponsoring teams in the league are asked to attend this meeting.

JOE LESCH, Secy-Treas.

Jesson Heads Golf League

Hager Named Secretary At Annual Meeting.

Paul Jesson last night was elected president of The News-Journal class A golf league at the links organization's annual dinner meeting at Possum Run golf club.

As a reward for winning Sunday's Richland County golf tournament at Westbrook Country club, Al Hager, Mansfield high school star, was elected secretary. And Pete Linster was continued in the treasurer's office.

* * *

The News-Journal's trophy for the league championship was presented to the Barnes & Schmid team, winners of the title in a playoff with the Long Bar.

Joe Mayer took top individual honors for the league with a one-under-par average for the season of 35, and also for best single round of 32 strokes.

Vin Tipul edged Al Hager for second best average with 36 5-14 compared to Hager's 36 5-7.

Tipul and Linster tied for second low round among No. 1 men with 34, while four No. 2 men beat that mark with 33. They were Gene Zediker, Ray Malaska, Pete Zeides and Joe Kasper. Zediker had low average of 37 3-7 for No. 2 men with Grant Hanawalt second at 37½.

* * *

The new president, Paul Jesson, led No. 3 men with low average of 39 3-7 and low round of 36. Ray Oakes had second high average of 40 6-13 and tied with Bill Scott and Oscar Frantz for second low round with 37.

Chuck Snyder paced the No. 4 men with a 39 7-23 average and low round of 36.

New Tribe Catcher Can Help at Plate

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Cleveland's acquisition of a catcher in the annual baseball draft meeting in New York can help the Indians at the plate.

He is Otto Denning of the Minneapolis club who batted .330 in the American Association.

* * *

Cleveland's catching staff is composed of Rollie Hemsley, whose 1941 average was .240, Gene Desautels, .192, and a rookie from the Tribe's Wilkesbarre, Pa., farm, Jim Hegan.

PUTS UP $25,000 STAKE TO GET WHIRLY TO RACE

NEW YORK —(INS)— The decision on whether Whirlaway, the three-year-old champion, will run again this season at Belmont Park ironically rested today with Samuel D. Riddle, owner of War Relic, one of Whirly's most steadfast competitors.

Alfred Vanderbilt, head of Belmont Park, agreed to put $25,000 on the line for a match race between the two horses with the stipulation that the winner would take all. Warren Wright, owner of Whirlaway, immediately agreed but Riddle was undecided.

Friendly House Boxing Team Starts Practice This Week

Fistic wars have started at the Friendly House for the fall season.

Working with six veterans Trainer John Eichinger has started this week to build this year's editon of his boxing team.

As yet the boys are still getting into condition for the amateur fight wars, but as time goes on Eichinger and Mike Wentz, Friendly House boys' work director, are planning to book cards with outside boxers.

* * *

Eichinger would like a few more novices out for the season, he said. So far no one but veterans has appeared, and primarily he and Friendly House are anxious to provide a place where Mansfield boys can learn the manly art at no cost and can develop poise through their exercise.

"Of course," he said, "novices won't be in the ring for quite some time . . . We want them to gain confidence and build themselves up first . . . but in time they'll learn to take care of themselves in a fight."

Beginners will learn how to punch both the fast and sand bags, shadow boxing and exercises, he added.

And now for the prospects among the veterans. Paul Carbetta, team star last year, has turned pro and so won't be available to toss the mits, but others are.

Al Sours, North Central Ohio light heavy champ, is working out and although it still is pretty early, looks in good condition.

Leonard Waddell, bantam weight who last year copped the novice flyweight crown at the Cleveland Golden Glove show, is the other reliable vet.

Others out pushing the leather are Mike Sours, welter; James Alexander, welter; Edward Woodbury, light; and Jack Eichinger, bantam.

With these boys both Wentz and Eichinger are hoping that a good squad can be built which will pack the Armory with fans through the winter.

Beginners wishing to take a shot at mitts will be welcome evenings on Mondays from 7:30 to 9, Tuesdays from 8:15 to 9:30 and Thursdays from 8 to 9:30.

Shoot Today

MRS. TOPPERWEIN

AD TOPPERWEIN

The famous shooting Topperweins, exhibition representatives of Winchester rifles, will give an hour demonstration of target and trick shooting this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Mansfield Gun Club range on the Park avenue west road.

The Topperweins shoot at all kinds of objects with rifle, pistol and shotgun, and from every position. Clay pigeons, wooden blocks, composition balls, metal discs, marbles, fruit, hen eggs, any kind of target that comes to hand prove the accuracy of the Topperwein shooting eye.

Sometimes two to five targets are in the air at one time, to be broken before they touch the ground.

N. C. O. Leaguers Open Flag Drive

SHELBY—Although the North Central Ohio league teams have played several football games already this fall, the league season does not get underway until Friday when all six elevens in the conference have games scheduled.

* * *

Two of the favorites for the title this fall battle in one of the opening league games, Marion Harding, co-champions with Shelby and Bucyrus in the league last fall, will play Mount Vernon on the Marion field. Both teams are rated high.

* * *

The other two games this week will bring Galion to Shelby in what should be an easy victory for the Whippets, while Ashland is entertaining the Bucyrus Redmen.

Shelby and Ashland are "dark horses" in the league this year and either may spring an upset by ending in the title bracket.

APPLESEED OPENS HOME GRID SEASON

Coach Paul Cameron's Johnny Appleseed Junior high gridders will appear in their second game of the season and their first on the home gridiron tomorrow afternoon when they meet Bellville reserves at 3 p. m.

Last Friday the Appleseeds held the Butler first team to a scoreless tie at Butler.

Moanin' Mattie Still Moaning

Doesn't Believe SMU Has Chance Against Fordham.

DALLAS—(AP)—Southern Methodist's Madison Bell, who takes sports writers to task for calling him Moanin' Matty, says:

"We'll be lucky if we can keep Fordham from beating us by 30 points."

* * *

Matty takes his Mustangs on a jaunt to New York Saturday to battle the mighty Rams in a top intersectional game.

* * *

"Red McClain (that's the former S. M. U. star now playing on the New York Giants pro team) told me Fordham was better than last year—and you know what a ball club they put in the Cotton Bowl against Texas A. & M.

* * *

"My boys hustle. They did that Saturday but don't let that 54-0 score we ran up on North Texas State fool you. North Texas just didn't have the usual strong team. They lost too many experienced men.

* * *

"Fordham is rated the best in the east. Well, we're not rated the strongest in the Southwest. I'm afraid it's going to be mighty rough for us up there."

"What strategy am I going to use? Why man, I just wish I could think of something that would hold the score down." Bell moaned.

Blue Streaks Bring Heavyweight Eleven

Visitors' Starting Team Weighs Average of 178; Weber Injured

COACH PAUL SNYDER'S gridiron Tygers of Mansfield high, preparing for their grudge battle Friday night with Sandusky's Blue Streaks at Stadium field, are also preparing to speed up their offense for use against the heaviest team they've met this season.

Snyder hopes to shake Lightnin' Jones loose for long gains against the heavy Streaks, and is working on plays designed to bring about that happy result.

Sandusky's starting eleven averages 178 pounds and includes two linemen over the 200 mark. Leser, right tackle, a veteran from last year, hits the scales at 202, while Kahler at left guard is a 225-pound giant.

The big fellows don't scare the well-balanced Tygers. They figure their faster charging will overcome the Sandusky weight advantage.

They were worried just a bit over the condition of Tyger Guard Duke Weber and End Joe Romano. Duke got banged up a bit in the Elyria game last week, and Romano was reported sick yesterday, but Joe's illness was not considered serious, and he is expected to start against Sandusky.

"I'd like to have Weber in there," said Coach Snyder, "but we're well protected at that position with Timmons, Goettle and Hetler capable of filling it."

The Tygers will work out under the lights at Stadium field tonight in their big scrimmage session of the week, and the public, Coach Snyder said, is welcome to sit in on the session.

"We're not worried about scouts attending the practice drills," the Tyger mentor asserted. "Our system doesn't change much, it depends on precision to make it work, and if the other schools don't know our plays now they'll never learn 'em.

"Last spring at the Ohio State clinic, Coach Paul Brown started diagramming Massillon plays for Ohio high school coaches. Out of 22 plays, 18 were identical with Mansfield plays, and there wasn't enough difference in the other four to pay a scout to check them."

Four players who started for Sandusky last fall against Mansfield are listed in the Streak starting lineup for Friday night. They are B. Niehm, right guard; Leser, right tackle; Giradi, right end, and R. Babcock, quarterback.

Subs of last year who have moved up to the first team include Kahler, left guard, and J. Babcock, center.

Stars for Sandusky last week against Lorain were Roesch, 160-pound line-smashing fullback, and Freitas, substitute back, who proved a dangerously accurate passer.

* * *

Fans who were forced to stand in line for tickets at the opening game with Akron West, were informed today they may obtain single game tickets down town before the game and save themselves the inconvenience of waiting at the field.

Tickets are on sale at Tawse pharmacy, Central drug store, Brown's drug store, Paul's Friendly store, Vin Mar on Marion avenue, Yuncker Sports, and Athletic Supply.

The 50-cent general admission tickets will carry the five-cent federal tax for the first time, George Sherman, in charge of ticket sales, reports that call for tickets are coming in fast, and a real crowd is expected.

* * *

Arrangements are also being made to charter buses to take fans to Newark the following Friday for the game between the Tygers and Wildcats. Newark is preparing a special section in its new stadium for the Mansfield delegation.

Brown Shows Boys on Fly

Ohio State Gridders Learn Trojan Plays En Route.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Consider, a moment, the plight of Paul Brown, head football man at Ohio State, who might be excused for wondering why he left a cozy high school job at Massillon to take over the Buckeyes this year.

Not that Brown has had tough sledding so far. His ball club won its opener from Missouri, 12-7, but he has had his tribulations.

* * *

Prior to the Missouri game it was the case of the missing scouting reports which had Brown in a dither. Now he and his boys are off on a train ride to Los Angeles to face the fearsome Southern California Trojans, and Paul is having to school his lads in U. S. C. plays "on the run."

* * *

Assistant Coaches Fritz Mackey and Paul Bixler, who scouted the Trojans in their 13-7 win over Oregon State Saturday, zipped home Sunday night with ample notes, but it wasn't fair to demand the Buckeyes work too hard on the traditional lazy Monday. Classes started Tuesday, so it wasn't polite to demand the gridders work more than two hours.

* * *

This morning the Ohio State team left Columbus for Chicago and was due to work out about noon at Stagg field, where University of Chicago grid teams used to play. Brown planned to shoot a few more Trojan plays at his squad and then continue by train toward Los Angeles. Another drill is listed tomorrow at Albuquerque, N. M.

* * *

Things lighten after the U.S.C. game, however, for the next weekend is free for the Buckeyes. After that come six games, including five western conference battles and a tilt with Pittsburgh.

GRIDDER HURT

ATHENS — (AP) — Fullback Bill Hartman of Canal Winchester will replace the injured Bill Heinz of Cincinnati in the quarterback position for Ohio university's grid game with Western Reserve Saturday, Coach Don Peden indicated.

Shooting Starts On Ducks

Richland County Hunters Shoulder Arms For Season.

Duck shooting started today in Ohio 15 days earlier than usual and with unusually plentiful game reported by the state conservation commission.

Placed in the northern waterfowl district for the first time in recent years, Ohio and Richland county nimrods got a crack at getting started sooner this year.

Moving to the southern half of the Charles Mill reservoir and to Lake Erie shores Mansfield hunters will have a chance at many Blue Winged Teal, Green Wings now migrating south across Ohio and early flights of Mallards, Black ducks, Widgeon and Pintails.

Charles Kimmel, Richland county fish and game warden, announced regulations governing shooting at Charles Mill.

Hunters, he said, must exchange their licenses for a day's permit each day and wear the tag on the outside of their coats in plain view. Duck stamps must be signed in ink across the face of the stamp. Shooting from 35 blinds will be allowed in the Charles Mill area and hunters must be in them an hour before the official sunrise time.

A second influx of hunters each day, he continued, between 12 noon and 1 p. m. No jump-shooting will be permitted. Hunters must stay in blinds until they are ready to come in. If they return to the lake boat house before 4 p. m. (closing time), another hunter will be allowed to fill the blind.

* * *

Kimmel warned that shooting of wood ducks is not permitted in Ohio and advised hunters not to shoot until they could see the duck's eyes. This last is not a rule, he explained, but would account for more hits if followed.

* * *

Best inland spots over the state are at Indian lake in Logan county, St. Mary's in Auglaize and Mercer and Keiser in Champaign, Portage in Summit, Buckeye in Licking, Fairfield and Perry.

Weather Doesn't Stop Her

OPAL HASSINGER

In spite of a heavy rain and wind that reached gale proportions, Opal Hassinger, of 482 Davey avenue, Mansfield, hit the targets for a 398 score in the open sight event of the North Central Ohio rifle championships at Galion Sunday. She had one miss from 50 yards and one from 100.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—The take-a-chance department, having batted .429 on week-end football selections and 1,000 on the fight, now unhesitatingly picks the Yankees to win the World series in five games . . . The way we look at it is this: The Dodgers are better, man-for-man, at a couple of positions, but when you add them all up you get the Yanks for hitting, the Yanks for fielding and the Yanks with a pitching department that isn't very much worse than Brooklyn's, if any.

If you like hunches, Joe Louis wanted to talk about the Yanks instead of the fight in his dressing room right after he kayoed Nova, so off that, you might call it the Yanks in six . . . The series rookies, Johnny Sturm and Pee-Wee Reese, won't be strangers when they step out on the field . . . They went against each other two years in the American Association playoffs.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Jerry Mitchell, New York Post: "A California yogi can control his breath, assume a dynamic stance, stand on his head while thinking deeply, and do everything, apparently, but stay up under a Joe Louis right to the jaw."

JACOBS BEACHCOMBINGS

There seems to be more doing around fight headquarters after the battle than before, even though some visitors from the mid-west kept right on arguing about football through it all . . . Ray Arcel was about the busiest guy of all, trying to explain what happened to Nova . . . Lou stayed in seclusion at his hotel and Arcel said Nova was peeved because he had wanted to go right out and slug with Louis and the board of strategy had overruled him . . . "I don't know whether he was right or not," Arcel admitted, "but if he'd gone out that way he might have been knocked out in the first round" . . . When and if Joe Louis goes into the army, that $55,000 federal tax on Monday's gate will pay his 21 bucks per with a little left over for a few regiments . . . Dr. Walston Crocker Brown, inventor of the dynamic punch, says that's what Louis used on Nova.

CONTRIBUTORS' CORNER

Lee W. Dodd of Conrad, Ia., suggests it would be only fair to let the Braves and Phillies play one game each in the World series, considering the large part they played in the Dodgers' pennant drive.

SERIES SPUTTER

The police went on duty at the Yankee Stadium Sunday night, 48 hours ahead of schedule, expecting that some eager Dodger fans would start forming a line any minute . . . Ducky Medwick says the bums no longer mind being called the "Bums." "Those Brooklyn fans can call you a bum and make it sound like a compliment," he maintains . . . Al Benton, the Tiger's hitless hurler, claims 1941 was his most successful season . . . itt wasn't because of his 14-6 winning record but because he made three hits . . . There's one department where the Dodgers figure they have a real edge over the Yankees—pinch hitting. Lew Riggs, Jim Wasdell and Augie Galan all can connect in the clutch . . . Arrivals from Boston hear that Lefty Grove has walked right out on the Red Sox and is telling friends he doesn't know what he will do next year.

GAS HOUSE BLUES

There is sadness tonight for we Card fans,
Sadness that tears can't o'ercome,
For the pennant we'd given to the Gas House Gang
Was stolen away by Dem Bums.
Blaine Simmons, jr., Sioux Falls, S. D.

IOWA TO PASS

IOWA CITY, Ia.—(INS)—Aware that Michigan's stalwart line may be a bit too tough for his team's running game, Coach Eddie Anderson of Iowa was believed to be hatching a pass attack today for the Hawkeyes' conference clash with the Wolverines on Saturday. The eleven has one of the conference's best passers in Jim Youell, and another aerial artist in Tommy Farmer.

MINNESOTA LOSES END

MINNEAPOLIS — (INS) — Bill Baumgartner, varsity end, will be lost to Minnesota for five or six weeks, it was disclosed today. Baumgartner, sole casualty of last week's opening win over Washington, suffered a broken bone in his left leg in the game. More than 1,000 fans roared a welcome to the Gophers upon their return home yesterday.

PURDUE TO OPEN UP

LAFAYETTE, Ind. —(INS)— A more wideopen offense was the objective today of Coach Mal Elward of Purdue as he sent the Boilermakers through another workout in preparation for Saturday's game with Pitt. The team's attack bogged down last week against Vanderbilt with the result the Boilermakers were upset, 3 to 0.

Hivelys Lead Mixed Doubles

But Windsor-Baker Team Takes Actual Honors.

Aided by a 216 handicap, Wayne and June Hively led the mixed double league last night with a 1,065 total, but dropped a 2-1 decision to Margaret Baker and Clarence Windsor who turned in the high unhandicapped total of 1,028.

Windsor had high total for men of 570, and Ev Jocha rolled the women's high total of 466.

THIS IS STORY ABOUT DANGEROUS FOOTBALL

ATHENS, Ga. — (AP) — Clarence Nelson, 215-pound sophomore tackle candidate on the University of Georgia football team, came through a scrimmage unscathed.

In the dressing room he rolled off a dressing table and broke a foot.

LEAHY UNSATISFIED

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(INS)—Although Notre Dame romped to a 38 to 7 victory over Arizona in its opening game last week, Coach Frank Leahy said today he was not satisfied with the showing of several key players. He did single out for praise, however, the work of sophomore left halfback Angelo Bertelli, whose passing and all-around performance was a big factor in the Ramblers' showing. Indiana will be this week's opponent.

Is your child a NOSE PICKER?

It may be more than just a nasty habit! It may be a sign of worms. Yes, ugly, crawling roundworms inside your child! Other warning signs are fidgeting, "picky" appetite, crankiness, itching in certain parts.

Roundworms can cause real trouble! If you even suspect your child has them, get Jayne's Vermifuge right away! Jayne's is America's best known proprietary worm medicine. Scientifically tested and used by millions for over a century. It expels stubborn worms, yet acts very gently. If no worms are there, Jayne's acts merely as a mild laxative. Be sure you get Jayne's Vermifuge.

Williams Transfer Takes Alley Honors

Williams Transfer keglers turned in high total of 2,699 in the Transportation league at Colony alleys last night, aided by a 177 handicap and took all three games from the Silver King Tractors.

P. Kurtz led the Williams attack on the maples with a 603 total on games of 225-189-189. His 225 game was high for the league, but Workman edged in front for total honors with 605 on games of 192-203-210.

Boys At Camp Prefer Watches, Games Or Money

NEW YORK—(INS)—What to send the boys in camp remains a problem with fond parents and friends of selectees. A survey among 500 trainees throughout the country has resulted in a series of "dont's" by which well-wishers may be guided.

The "dont's" include, don't provide the newly inducted soldier with anything to take along with him beyond the barest accessories such as a razor, a pocket knife or a wrist watch; don't press any supplementary clothing on him until you know where he is to be more or less permanently located; don't send him any unwieldy gadgets of any sort at any time.

Best bets for soldiers, after they have been inducted and have become acquainted with their surroundings, are cigarettes, games such as checkers, cards or Citadel, which is a West Point favorite, razor blades, postage stamps, books or just small change.

The average soldier's day calls for work until about four in the afternoon. The late afternoon and evening are his own. Most suitable off-hour activities are those which can be taken advantage of by two or three camp buddies rather than by larger groups.

GREAT LITERATURE.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — (UP) James Hilton, author of "Lost Horizon," and "Goodbye Mr. Chips," predicted here that present wars eventually would be the inspiration for "Great Literature." However, he added, we are "now too close to see it in its true perspective."

Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, worked his way through the University of Chicago by teaching in night schools.

MARKET TRENDS MIXED; CHANGES REMAIN NARROW

Stock Analysts See Difficulty In Getting Raw Materials Reflected In Dealings.

NEW YORK — Stock market trends were mixed in today's early dealings and changes generally were narrow.

Analysts noted that while electric power consumption registered another gain in the week ended Sept. 27 some important industrial areas had narrower increases over 1941 than in the preceding week.

Some theorized these trends reflected in part the difficulties being experienced by non-defense industries in obtaining raw materials.

Power output for the entire nation advanced slightly over the previous week although the expansion was less than seasonally expected. It was 14.8 per cent over last year and the week before, the gain was 16.7 per cent.

PARTIAL CHANGE IN LAW SEEN

Washington Observers Expect FDR To Ask Piecemeal Neutrality Revision.

Canadian ports from which the law now bans them.

Several congressional leaders have advocated outright repeal of the act or—as suggested by Chairman Connally (D. Tex.) of the senate foreign relations committee—modifications which would permit not only the arming of the ships but their entry into European belligerent ports to deliver war supplies.

The latter proposal might be expected to provoke lengthy debate.

There were indications that senate opposition to the arming of American merchantmen would be much less formidable, so long as that proposal was not linked with a plan to send the ships into embattled European ports.

In the house Democratic leaders were reported convinced that there would be an overwhelming majority for arming merchant ships, and further that complete repeal of the neutrality act could be obtained, if desired.

The proposal for arming ships drew the unexpected endorsement today by Rep. Fish (R. N. Y.), usually an opponent of President Roosevelt's foreign policy.

"I see no objection to arming our ships so that they can protect themselves," Fish said. "I regard that as a defensive measure. Neither am I opposed to convoying supplies as far as Iceland."

Fish reiterated his intention to introduce a resolution calling for the United States to declare war on Germany in order "that we may have a showdown once and for all on this question."

Leaders said, meanwhile, that the president's recommendations to congress for changes in the law probably would be delayed until next week.

Senators opposed to abolishing the present European combat zone restrictions pointed to the statement made yesterday by Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain as indicating there was no necessity for sending American vessels into areas of acute danger.

Churchill told the house of commons that in the last three months shipping losses were only one-third of what they had been in April, May and June.

Senator Taft (R. Ohio) said Churchill's report undoubtedly would strengthen the argument of those who contended that there was no military necessity either for arming ships or abolishing combat zones.

"There is no more reason now for sending our ships into danger areas than there was two years ago," Taft told reporters.

At his press conference, the president had little to say directly regarding revision of the neutrality statute but he enumerated the cargo of a ship recently torpedoed and placed emphasis on the difficulty of replacing supplies that are lost at sea.

The vessel involved was the Pink Star, a former Danish ship which had been shifted to American ownership and Panama registry. She was torpedoed enroute to Iceland with a cargo consisting mostly of food which, the president said, was necessary to maintain the bodies of a people fighting for its existence.

In response to a question, he declared that he supposed food was contraband of war under some rules.
